PREFACE

The geographical territory now known as Ontario and Quebec was ceded by the King of France to the King of England under the terms of the Treaty of Paris signed on February 10, 1763¹. Since that date, for purposes of administration, this territory has had four systems of government. On October 7, 1763 by Royal Proclamation² the King of England granted Letters Patent for the government of this territory which he named Quebec.

In 1791 the Constitutional Act³ was passed by the Imperial Parliament whereby the province of Quebec was divided into two separate provinces to be known as the province of Upper Canada and the province of Lower Canada. This division lasted until July 23, 1840 when the Act of Union⁴ was signed whereby for purposes of administration the provinces of Upper Canada and Lower Canada once more were united. The territory was known officially as the Province of Canada but popularly as the United Provinces.

On March 29, 1867 the Queen of England signed the British North America Act⁵ whereby the Province of Canada federally united with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick to form a Dominion. At the same time the Province of Canada once more was divided into two separate provinces. The territory which had been known as the province of Upper Canada now became the province of Ontario and the province of Lower Canada became the province of Quebec.

Prior to September 1963 no definitive bibliographies of the publications of any of these governments existed. Since that date bibliographies have been published covering the government of the Province of Canada⁶, the government of Ontario 1901-1955⁷, the government of Ontario 1956-1971⁸, and 1972, 1973, 1974⁹. Bibliographies also have been published covering the government of Quebec, 1867-1964¹⁰, 1965-1968¹¹ and since 1966¹² an annual volume has been published.

The purpose of this study has been to investigate the type of document and the authority for publication of those documents issued by the government of Ontario between July 1, 1867 and December 31, 1900 as well as to prepare a bibliography of those documents.

Three students, namely, Douglas Armstrong, Doris Wagg, and Mary (Shimla) Watson, registered in 1967 in a course on Government Publications, in the Faculty of Library Science, University of Toronto, began an investigation of Ontario documents 1867-1900 under the guidance of the author.

The continuation of the project was made possible through research grants awarded to the author by the Midwestern Regional Library Services, the Humanities and Social Sciences Council, University of Toronto and the Canada Council. These grants not only permitted the employing of two research assistants but permitted travel to other cities to use library collections. The University of Toronto very generously granted the author a sabbatical from July 1 to December 31, 1973 in order to devote full time to the study. Without the grants, the sabbatical, and the able assistance of Margaret (Falconer) Allen, teaching assistant, and Daphne Phillips, graduate student, both of the Faculty of Library Science, this study could not have been successfully completed.

Two tables in the appendices, namely, Table of Journals with Appendices and Table of Sessional Papers, were compiled by Diane Priestly, Law Library, University of Victoria, who very kindly consented to have them included.

The resources of many libraries were used to collect the data. Grateful acknowledgment is made to the chief librarian of all libraries cited in the List of Location Symbols. Grateful acknowledgment must also be made to the following individuals within those libraries cited, for their active participation in tracking down those elusive documents, not yet listed in library catalogues, but referred to in annual department reports, etc.: Marion Cameron, Flora (Blizzard) Francis, and Bernard Katz, University of Guelph; Charles Ellsworth and William F.E. CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

Under the terms of the British North America Act¹ signed at Westminster on March 29, 1867 the Province of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick were federally united into one Dominion under the name Canada. The Province of Canada which had been created in 1840² by the Act of Union now once more was divided into two provinces. The geographical territory known prior to 1840 as the province of Upper Canada now was named the province of Ontario and the province of Lower Canada now was named the province of Quebec. The provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick retained the geographical limits which they had prior to 1867.

Part five of the Act dealt with the "provincial constitutions". Both the executive and legislative authority of a province was laid down. This authority varied somewhat from province to province. The chief executive officer, however, for each province was a Lieutenant Governor, appointed by the Governor General in Council, and paid by the Parliament of Canada. He held office for five years, and could only be removed for cause within that period.

The other executive officers for Ontario, appointed by the Lieutenant Governor, were the Attorney General, the Secretary and Registrar of the Province, the Treasurer of the Province, the Commissioner of Crown Lands, and the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works. They, with the Lieutenant Governor, were the members of the Executive Council. Since the executive officers had to be appointed from the elected representatives to the Legislative Assembly, the length of time they could serve was contingent upon how long they served as members of the Legislative Assembly.

All the executive powers, authorities or functions under any act of the Parliament of Great Britain, or the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain or Ireland, or of the Legislature of Upper Canada or the Parliament of the Province of Canada which had been exercised up to 1867 by the Governors of this Province were vested in the Lieutenant Governor who could act individually or with the advice and consent of the Executive Council.³ The Legislature of Ontario could change any act which it had passed or which had been passed by a former provincial Parliament or Legislature. It could not, however, change any legislation passed either by the Parliament of Great Britain or the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The legislative powers were vested in a Legislature consisting of the Lieutenant Governor and one House, called the Legislative Assembly, composed of eighty-two elected members, one each from the eighty-two electoral districts which were named in the first schedule appended to the British North America Act.

The Lieutenant Governor was required to hold the first session of the Legislature within six months of the union of the provinces. All the provincial laws pertaining to the qualifications or disqualifications of members, voters, and returning officers were to continue in force until such time as the Legislature might wish to provide otherwise.

A session of the Legislature must be held every year. Elections to the Legislative Assembly must be held every four years. However, the House could be dissolved sooner by the Lieutenant Governor. The Legislative Assembly was required, at its first meeting, to elect a speaker who would preside at all meetings. The Speaker had a vote only in the case of a tie.

Part six of the Act dealt with the distribution of the legislative powers between the Parliament of Canada and a provincial legislature. Parliament was responsible for twenty-nine areas; the Legislature had exclusive powers in sixteen. In addition to the sixteen areas, the Legislature had exclusive rights to pass legislation respecting education, subject, however, to certain provisions laid down in the Act whereby an appeal could be made to Parliament. In the areas of agriculture and immigration, both the Legislature and Parliament could pass legislation. However, the Legislature could not pass any legislation repugnant to Parliament.

With respect to the administration of justice, the Governor General, not the Lieutenant Governor, appointed the judges to the superior, district, and county courts. The judges were paid by the Parliament of Canada.

Part eight of the Act provided for the distribution of the revenues, debts, assets, and taxation between Canada and the provinces.

Part nine of the Act termed miscellaneous made provision for a board of arbitrators of three members who would be responsible for the division and adjustment of the debts, credits, liabilities, properties, and assets of Upper Canada and Lower Canada. It also dealt with the language problem. Since either the English or French language could be used in debate, both languages were to be used in the Records and Journals of the Houses of Parliament and Legislature of Quebec. The Acts must be printed and published in both languages. It can be assumed, therefore, that the Records, Journals, and Acts of the legislatures of the other provinces would be printed and published only in the English language which indeed they were.

Between 1867 and 1900 a number of changes were brought about in the provincial constitutions through provincial legislation. The number of executive officers gradually was increased until by 1888 seven officers sat in the Executive Council. In 1890 the first member without portfolio was added to the Council. By 1899 this number had increased to three.

As the Executive Council was expanding so were the branches which the executive officers represented. Branches grew, split, and re-aligned to provide for the growth and needs of the Province. Generally these changes became official through legislation.

At the same time as changes were being legislated in the executive structure, changes also were being legislated in the structure of the Legislative Assembly. In 1874⁴ a number of changes in the electoral districts were legislated which resulted in electoral districts being increased from eighty-two to eighty-eight. In 1885⁵ a further change was legislated. This did not increase the number of electoral districts but allowed the district of Toronto to return three members thus bringing a possible total membership in the Legislative Assembly to ninety. Three years later changes were legislated which removed the property qualifications for voters.⁶

Neither the Executive nor the Legislative Assembly was able to carry out an investigation into all the problems presented to them. When an investigation independent of government was needed, a Royal Commission was established by the

⁶ Act of 51 Vict., c. 4.

Lieutenant Governor with power to summon before it any person to testify under oath or to demand any documents relevant to the investigation. One hundred and twenty-five commissions were established by the Lieutenant Governor between 1867 and 1900. The Legislative Assembly, on the other hand, established two types of committee to facilitate its work. At the beginning of each session standing committees, sometimes named select standing committees, were appointed to investigate the reports presented to the Legislative Assembly by the various branches of government. One such committee, which was appointed annually, was the Select Standing Committee on Printing. This Committee was charged with recommending which Sessional Papers should be printed as well as those which should not be printed. It might also recommend the number of copies which should be printed. When some topic that had been brought to the attention of the Legislative Assembly needed investigation, a select committee was appointed. A number of the reports of both the commissions and committees were published.

The Legislative Assembly frequently requested the Lieutenant Governor to make information available to it in the form of a report or return. Many of these reports were printed as Sessional Papers.

When legislation was passed respecting the role of the several executive branches of government, generally the head of the department was required to report annually on the activities of the department. These reports were addressed to the Lieutenant Governor, who would lay such reports before the Legislative Assembly. When a new branch of government was established by legislation and attached to one of the executive officers, the annual report generally was addressed by the branch head to the executive officer who would lay the report before the Legislative Assembly. These reports generally also were published.

Between 1867 and 1900 approximately two thousand titles were printed as the result of the above activities. A volume count would double this number which does not include writs, proclamations, and instruments for summoning and proroguing the Legislative Assembly or for calling elections. Reprinted laws, excerpts from journals or departmental reports have not been listed unless published as consolidations of the original or printed as a serial. Manuscripts have been included only when they formed a part of a printed series. Maps likewise have been excluded except those which were included as part of a printed report. In these cases, a note to this effect has been included in the collation.

The bibliographic citation for each document listed, other than for royal commissions which has been explained in that section, gives an author (generally a corporate author), title in full, the authority for publishing (where given), the imprint, the collation (including pagination, graphs, tables, maps, etc.), a series note where applicable (all Sessional Papers have been identified except those published as a serial) and at least one location symbol where the document may be located.

The documents published by the government of Ontario can be divided into three major types; (1) laws, statutes, etc., (2) serials, and (3) special publications. Under each division of government, where applicable, the documents have been listed under these three types. Within types one and three the arrangement generally has been chronological with an alphabetic arrangement within each year. For serials the annual departmental report has been cited first followed by the other serials in alphabetical order. The printed departmental regulations have been cited with the special reports.

A history of the development of each branch of government, particularly as it applies to the issuance of reports, has been given. The information for this history was obtained either from the reports listed in the bibliographical sections of this study or from the acts passed by three different parliaments or legislatures, the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland, the Parliament of the Province of Canada, and the Legislature of Ontario. For those acts passed by the Parliament of Great Britain the notations "Imperial Act of" precedes the number of the act. Similarly for the Parliament of the Province of Canada the notation "Canada (Province) Act of" precedes the number of the act. When an act has been quoted without any such notation that act was passed by the Legislature of Ontario. Since all information was obtained from reports cited in this study and since citations have been given in the footnotes no separate bibliography of sources has been compiled.

CHAPTER II

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Under the terms of the British North America Act¹ a lieutenant governor was to be the chief executive officer for each province. The Lieutenant Governor appointed by the Governor General in Council by Instrument under the Great Seal of Canada, paid by the Parliament of Canada, held office during the pleasure of the Governor General, and could not be removed from office under five years except for cause.

All the powers, authorities, or functions which had been laid down in legislation by the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland, the Legislature of Upper Canada, or the Parliament of the Province of Canada, governing this territory, and exercised by the Governor or Lieutenant Governors were now vested in the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario.

The Lieutenant Governor was required to appoint the other executive officers from among the elected representatives to the Legislative Assembly. They became the members of the Executive Council. The Lieutenant Governor within the law could act on his own or with the advice and consent of the Council. When acting with advice the term Lieutenant Governor in Council was designated. He also was a member of the Legislature.

In the name of the Queen, the Lieutenant Governor was required to summon the first session of the Legislature within six months after the British North America Act came into force. Thereafter he must summon and call together the Legislative Assembly annually. No Legislature could continue beyond four years. However, the Lieutenant Governor could dissolve it at any time within the four-year period.

The Lieutenant Governor was not required to issue any report on his activities. He was, however, called upon by the House to present reports to them on various matters. Since many of the reports dealt with department matters and were prepared by the departments, those reports have been listed with the department concerned. Reports dealing with the disallowance of certain bills by the government of Canada which had been passed by the Legislative Assembly have been listed below in chronological order.

Arbitration proceedings between Ontario and Quebec, Ontario and the Dominion of Canada, Ontario and Manitoba for one cause or another were carried on during most of the period under review. The publications resulting from arbitration which were published by the government of Ontario have been listed below, under arbitration, with two sub-headings: (1) boundaries, (2) debts, credits, liabilities, properties, and assets.

Three boards were established by legislation, namely (1) Board of Game Commissioners, 1892; (2) Commissioners for the Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park, 1885; (3) Provincial Board of Health. All three reported to the Lieutenant Governor. The publications which were issued by these boards have been listed under the respective board.

From time to time Royal Commissions were appointed by the Lieutenant Governor. Approximately twenty per cent of the reports submitted to the Lieutenant Governor were printed. These have been listed in this chapter under Commissions.

An Inspector of Legal Offices was appointed in 1881. He was made responsible to the Lieutenant Governor and required to submit an annual report to him.

When the School of Mining and Agriculture was established at Kingston in 1893 the Lieutenant Governor could demand a report on activities at any time. Likewise when the School of Practical Science was established in 1873 it also was required to report to the Lieutenant Governor.

The University of Toronto, established by Royal Charter in 1827 under the title of King's College, was required to issue certain reports to the Governor. This requirement continued and from 1867 to 1900 various reports were presented, some of which were published.

ARBITRATIONBOUNDARIES

Under the British North America Act² the geographic territory of Ontario was defined as that part of Canada which formerly constituted the province of Upper Canada. While the easterly boundary³ was determined when the province of Quebec, in 1791, was divided into the province of Upper Canada and the province of Lower Canada the northerly and westerly boundaries were not established and remained a matter of concern to the Legislature of Ontario.

² Imperial Act of 30 and 31 Vict., c. 3.

³ Royal Proclamation, June 18, 1791.

On June 29th, 1871 an act⁴ was passed whereby the Parliament of Canada with the consent of the Legislature of any province could increase, decrease or otherwise alter the boundaries of their province. Thus on December 21, 1874 the Legislature of Ontario passed an act⁵ whereby it gave consent to the Parliament of Canada to accept the northerly and westerly boundaries as determined by the arbitrators appointed for that purpose.

The same day another act⁶ was passed which confirmed the boundary between Ontario and Quebec as laid down in a Royal Proclamation, June 18, 1791.

A further act⁷ passed on March 11, 1879, which contained the award agreed to by the arbitrators on August 3, 1878, accepted the decision of the arbitrators thereby permitting the Parliament of Canada to declare the northerly and westerly boundaries as laid down in the award.

The westerly boundary question however was far from settled. Both Ontario and Manitoba claimed the territory known as the north and west Height of Land. This dispute had been taken to the Imperial Privy Council which had appointed a Judicial Committee to investigate the problems of the disputed territory. While the case was still before the Judicial Committee, in order to secure peace and order in the territory, an act⁸ was passed on March 25, 1884 whereby rules were laid down for the administration of justice in this territory.

On August 12, 1889 the Imperial Parliament passed an act known as the Canada (Ontario Boundary) Act⁹ in which it laid down the boundary between Ontario and Manitoba. The Legislature of Ontario passed an act¹⁰ on April 1, 1899 in which it accepted this boundary.

No annual report was required by any of the above statutes. However, the Legislative Assembly requested that various reports, statutes, and correspondence held in the several branches of government be laid before them. A number of these were presented. The branch of government or individual author who supplied the information has been listed as the author of the report. All printed reports respecting boundaries have been arranged in this section in chronological order.

DEBTS, CREDITS, LIABILITIES, PROPERTIES, AND ASSETS

Under the British North America Act¹¹ the "division and adjustment of Debts, Credits, Liabilities, Properties and Assets of Upper Canada and Lower Canada" were to be referred to the arbitrament of three arbitrators, one for the Parliament of Canada, one each for the legislatures of Ontario and Quebec.

Arbitration which began in 1867 was still being carried on in 1900. Numerous reports resulted. Those which the Legislative Assembly requested be laid before them, generally were printed in the Sessional Papers. A number of other reports also were printed by the government printers. All these reports have been arranged in chronological order.

BOARDS

BOARD OF GAME COMMISSIONERS

One of the first acts¹² to be passed by the Legislative Assembly on February 28, 1868 dealt with the protection of game. While the Act stated what was legal as well as what was illegal, no provision was made to appoint an officer who would be responsible for enforcing the law or reporting to the government. A new act¹³ was passed on March 5, 1880 whereby provision was made for the appointment of a game inspector at the municipal level of government but not at the provincial level. When a further act¹⁴ was passed on April 14, 1892 concern was shown not only for the protection of game but for the protection of inland fisheries which belonged to the federal government. Under this Act the Lieutenant Governor in Council was authorized to appoint a Board of Fish and Game Commissioners of five members, each holding office for three years.

The Board was required to present an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor on its activities which consisted of: securing the enforcement of the laws for the protection of game; collecting, classifying and preserving statistics, data, and information on the protection of game and the preservation, propagation, and protection of fish. The Board also was empowered to make recommendations for legislative action. The first report of the Board was issued for the year 1892, and annually thereafter.

In 1898 the Chairman of the Board recommended that the Legislature appoint a Commissioner of Fisheries now that the government had been made responsible for inland fisheries¹⁵. Indeed the Report of the Ontario Game and Fish Commissioners for 1899 issued a separate section dealing with fish which was cited as the First annual report of the Fisheries Branch.

On April 30, 1900 this action was legalized by passing one act¹⁶ dealing with game and a separate act¹⁷ dealing with fish. Under the new Act¹⁸ the name of the Board was changed to Board of Game Commissioners of the province of Ontario. This Act also required the Board to present an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor. The report continued the sequential numbering of the annual report of the former joint board.

THE COMMISSIONERS FOR THE QUEEN VICTORIA NIAGARA FALLS PARK

On March 30, 1885 an act¹⁹ was passed whereby the Lieutenant Governor in Council was authorized to appoint three persons to constitute a Board of Commissioners to be known as "The Commissioners for Niagara Falls Park" whose purpose was to develop a plan for restoring the scenery around Niagara Falls. The Commissioners were to make a report on how the land might be permanently appropriated, improved and preserved, and managed so a public park could be enjoyed. The report also was to contain a certified map showing the land needed to carry out the restoration. This report was to be made to the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

Two years later on April 23, 1887 a further act²⁰ was passed whereby the Park was officially named "The Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park". Five commissioners were appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council to be known as "The Commissioners for the Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park". They were the corporation responsible for the control of land use of the park, subject to the direction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

The Commissioners were required to present an annual report to the Legislative Assembly on the receipts and expenditures, matters of public interest about the park, or any matters which the Lieutenant Governor in Council might direct to be reported.

The Commissioners for Niagara Falls Park issued two reports, the first called a preliminary report in 1885, and the second for 1885/86. The next report, which covered the work from March to December 1886, issued on March 5, 1887, was in error called the report for 1887. In the sequential numbering adopted in 1888 by the Commissioners for the Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park the report for 1885/86 was considered the first and the one covering the work from March to December 1886 [i.e. 1887] the second.

The annual reports for the years 1885/86, 1888, 1893, 1895–1898 were addressed to the Provincial Secretary. The reports for the other years were addressed to the Lieutenant Governor.

In addition to the annual report a number of special reports were published. These, including the preliminary report, have been listed in chronological order.

PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH OF ONTARIO

An act²¹ was passed on March 29, 1873 whereby the Lieutenant Governor was permitted to establish by proclamation "The Central Board of Health" to deal with disease if it reached epidemic proportions. As soon as the epidemic was over, however, this board would cease to exist. Health really was considered a municipal rather than a provincial matter. The Central Board of Health was empowered to issue regulations as necessary for the control of epidemics.

All proclamations issued by the Lieutenant Governor and regulations issued by the Board were to be laid before the Legislative Assembly immediately if in session, or within fourteen days of the beginning of the next session. No proclamations or regulations were laid before the Legislative Assembly between 1873 and 1882 when the Provincial Board of Health was established. Not satisfied with the information it was receiving concerning public health the Legislative Assembly appointed a "Select Committee to consider and report on the subject of sanitary measures for maintaining the Public Health".²³ The Committee was empowered to interview persons and examine papers relevant to health. The report of the Committee was presented to the Legislative Assembly on March 2, 1878. The Committee made recommendations in eight areas, one of which concerned the Public Health Act which the Committee believed was ineffective.

Four years later on March 10, 1882 a new Public Health Act²⁴ entitled "An act to establish a Provincial Board of Health and to give increased powers to local boards of health" was passed. The Lieutenant Governor in Council was authorized to appoint a "Provincial Board of Health of Ontario" of not more than seven members. The Board was required to hold quarterly meetings, study especially the vital statistics of the Province and to "make an intelligent and profitable use of the collected records of death and sickness among the people"; carry out sanitary investigations and inquiries respecting causes of disease, and especially epidemics. The Lieutenant Governor, in case of an epidemic, could by proclamation confer on the Board all the rights and powers which formerly had been conferred on the Central Board of Health.

The Act did not require an annual report of proceedings. The Board, however, was to provide and distribute information to local boards of health, schools, municipal councils, etc. concerning epidemics, disease, and sanitary requirements.

By a further act²⁵ passed on March 25, 1884 local boards of health must be established in every township, incorporated village, town, and city in the Province. The chairman of each local board was required to present to the Municipal Council an annual detailed statement of the work of the board. These statements were to be forwarded to the Provincial Board of Health.

On March 25, 1886 an act was passed²⁶ whereby all regulations made by the Provincial Board of Health must be laid before the Legislative Assembly. However, if the regulations had been approved by the Lieutenant Governor and had been published in the Ontario gazette the Legislative Assembly could not repeal them.

The Board presented its first annual report to the Lieutenant Governor for the year 1882. Reports on the work of committees and of the local boards of health as well as papers on various health problems were printed.

In 1886 the Executive Health Officers of Ontario met to form an association for the exchange of information. In 1887 they held their first annual meeting.²⁷ Numerous papers were presented at these meetings. These papers were printed in the annual report which was published by the Queen's Printer. A list of the papers was included in the annual report in 1893 which covered the first eight meetings. Two meetings were held in 1888 which were listed as the second and third.

The Provincial Board issued several consolidations of laws respecting public health. These have been listed in chronological order.

From time to time special reports were printed. Some of these do not have a date. These will be listed at the beginning of the chronological sequence.

COMMISSIONS

On February 28, 1868 an act was passed²⁸ whereby the Lieutenant Governor was authorized to appoint a commission to inquire into any matter relating to good government or the administration of justice if he in Council decided such an investigation was necessary. He could confer upon the commissioners the power to summon before them any persons to testify under oath or to demand any documents relative to the investigation.

One hundred and twenty-five royal commissions were appointed between 1869 and 1900, as shown in two lists prepared by the Provincial Secretary.²⁹ Every year except 1878 at least one commission was appointed. The reports for twenty of these commissions were printed. Reports for three commissions not contained in the above cited lists were printed bringing the total to twenty-three. Two of these were appointed in 1877 and the third was appointed in 1897. One dealt with the value of Central Prison labour and two were concerned with education.

The bibliographic citations for commissions vary from that described in the introduction to this study in that it will list: title of commission; date and by whom appointed; chairman; commissioners; secretaries (if shown); actual dates of report; when tabled in the Legislative Assembly; actual title of report; authority for printing (if shown); imprint; pagination or number of volumes; and contents where relevant.

The printed reports have been listed under commissions in chronological order based on the date of the establishment of the commission. Several special reports respecting the setting up of a commission or the number of commissions established were presented to the House by the Provincial Secretary. These have been listed in this section in chronological order under special publications.

INSPECTOR OF LEGAL OFFICES

On March 4, 1881 an act³⁰ cited as the Ontario Judicature Act was passed with the purpose of consolidation of the superior courts. By this Act the Lieutenant Governor was empowered to "appoint one of the officers of the high court or other competent person to be an inspector of the officers of Sheriffs, Local Masters, Deputy Registrars, Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Local Registrars of the High Court, Registrars of Surrogate Court, Clerk of the Peace and County Crown Attorneys, and Clerks of the County Court, in the respective counties of the province". The duties of the inspector were: to inspect the above offices and books and court papers belonging to these officers; to make sure that all officers were carrying out their duties efficiently; and to report on all such matters to the Lieutenant Governor. This Act was to take effect on August 22, 1881. The first inspector was appointed on May 30, 1882.³¹

The first annual report of the inspector was presented not to the Lieutenant Governor but to the Attorney General. The reports continued to be submitted to the Attorney General until 1892 when a new inspector was appointed on September 1st. This inspector carried out the requirement that annual reports be submitted to the Lieutenant Governor.

Only one special report was issued by the Inspector of Legal Offices.

SCHOOL OF PRACTICAL SCIENCE

An act³³ was passed on March 29, 1873 whereby a School of Practical Science was established in Toronto for instruction in mining, engineering, mechanical, and manufacturing arts. A museum of geology and mineralogy also was established. Both the School and Museum were governed by rules and regulations prescribed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. The internal management was under the direction of the council composed of the lecturers and instructors in the School. Academic degrees were conferred by the University of Toronto.

An annual report on the progress of the School, record of full-time, part-time, and evening students with classes attended and their progress, list of lecturers, and number of lectures delivered with the number of persons attending was to be submitted to the Legislative Assembly. The first annual report was published for the year 1873. From 1873 to 1879 these reports were printed in the Sessional Papers. Generally beginning with the report for 1880/81 these reports were published as an appendix to the report of the Minister of Education. However, since the School was governed by rules and regulations prescribed by the Lieutenant Governor, the School has been considered in this chapter rather than in a section of the Education Department.

Calendars, although not published by authority of the Legislative Assembly, have been included since they were printed by the Legislature printers.

Three special publications have been listed in alphabetical order.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

On April 22, 1853 an act³⁴ was passed by the government of the Province of Canada "to amend the laws relating to the University of Toronto, by separating its functions as a university from those assigned to it as a college, and by making better provision for the management of the property thereof and that of Upper Canada College." Two corporate bodies were established: one, "The University of Toronto", whose members were: one Chancellor, one Vice-Chancellor, and such other members of the Senate as the Governor shall appoint from time to time; the other, "The Council of University College", whose members were: the President, Vice-President, and Professors of the College. The Governor of the Province of Canada was named the Visitor to both the University and College.

There were to be no professorships or teacherships in the University of Toronto. Its functions were limited to examining candidates for degrees in the several faculties, scholarships, prizes, and certificates of honour and granting of the same. It could also set the fees for examinations.

The Corporation of the University which had the management and superintendence over the affairs of the University of Toronto was empowered to make statutes necessary for the promotion and purposes of the University. No statute, however, could be contrary to the laws of Upper Canada or the general provisions laid down in the above cited act. All statutes had to be approved by the Visitor before they could be enforced. A certified copy of all statutes had to be deposited with the Provincial Secretary within ten days of passing by the Corporation, to be laid before the Visitor for approval.

³⁴ Act of 16 Vict., c. 89.

The Senate, not the Corporation, was required to report annually to the Governor on the general state, progress and prospect of the University and make suggestions which they thought proper. The Senate also was required to examine and report on any matter which the Governor might wish investigated. Copies of all reports whether special or annual were to be laid before both Houses of Parliament.

The Council of University College was given full power and authority to make statutes for: the good government, discipline, conduct and regulation of the College, the professors, teachers, students, officers and servants; regulating the fees to be paid by students; the management of the property and business; and for carrying out this Act.

Like the University, the College must submit a certified copy of all statutes governing the college, to the Provincial Secretary within ten days of passing by the Council, for transmittal to and approval by the Visitor. No statute came into force until so approved.

The Council of University College was required to present an annual report to the Governor on the general state, progress, and prospects of the College, and any matters upon which the Governor might require a report. All reports were to be laid before both Houses of Parliament at its next session.

Under this Act the Corporation of "The Principals, Masters, and scholars of Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School" was dissolved. All the affairs and business of that institution were placed under the control, management, and direction of the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and members of the Senate of the University of Toronto, where they remained until 1887 when once more the Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School were separated from the University and placed under a Board of Trustees.³⁵ Since the Board now reported to the Minister of Education all documents have been listed under that department.

To provide for the better management of university and college property, all property, real or personal, belonging to the University of Toronto or Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School was vested in the Crown, to be managed and administered under orders of the Governor in Council by an officer to be called the Bursar of the University and Colleges of Toronto. The Bursar also was required to make an annual report to the Governor on the number of acres of land originally granted for the endowment of the University and Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School; the number of acres sold, at what rate; the amount of capital invested, and the amount expended; the amount received, and a detailed account expended for the preceding year, in salaries, contingent expenses, and buildings, specifying the duties of the person receiving such salaries, and the purposes of such buildings.

In 1867 when the Parliament of the Province of Canada was dissolved and the Legislature of the province of Ontario was established under the terms of the British North America Act³⁶, the 1853 act continued in force.

On March 29, 1873 an act³⁷ was passed to promote the usefulness of the University by amending some of the sections of the 1853 Act. Under this Act membership in the Corporation was increased. The number of Senators was increased to twenty-four in addition to the Chancellor. The Lieutenant Governor appointed nine members and for the first time Convocation elected fifteen members to the Corporation. In addition the following ex officio members were included: the President of University College, the Chief Superintendent of Education, a representative from the Law Society of Ontario.

³⁷ Act of 36 Vict., c. 29.

the Principal of Upper Canada College, a representative from each affiliated College, a representative elected by the High School Masters of Ontario and all former Chancellors and Vice-Chancellors of the University. The Act also included an amendment respecting University College, by which the Dean of residence of University College was made a member of the Council of University College.

The Senate of the University now could originate an inquiry into the conduct or efficiency of any professor in University College, and report the results to the Lieutenant Governor with recommendations for action.

The Lieutenant Governor in Council upon the recommendations of the Senate, could establish new professorships or chairs in University College which would promote its efficiency or usefulness.

When the Statutes of Ontario were revised in 1877, two separate acts, one respecting University College³⁸ and one respecting the University of Toronto³⁹, brought into force the Province of Canada Act⁴⁰ of 1853 with the amendments passed by the Legislature of Ontario in 1873⁴¹. The section respecting property and income of the University of Toronto, University College and Upper Canada College also was issued as a separate act⁴². Section 18, chapter 211, of the Revised Statutes of Ontario was amended on March 11, 1879 in which every order in council directing payment from the Permanent Fund must now be laid before the Legislative Assembly for ratification or rejection.

On April 23, 1887 an act⁴³ was passed "respecting the federation of the University of Toronto and University College with other Universities and Colleges". This Act provided for a teaching faculty in the University of Toronto in approximately twenty areas. The Senate still was required to report annually to the Lieutenant Governor on the general condition and progress of the University. The Senate could now under its own volition enquire into the conduct, teaching, and efficiency of any professor or teacher in either the University faculty or University College. A report, however, with recommendations for action, must be made to the Lieutenant Governor.

Under this Act a University Council consisting of the President and all Professors of the University was established. It had full authority and entire responsibility for: discipline over all students in relation to the lectures and other instruction by professors, lecturers and other teachers of the University; all officers and servants of the University whose services were required with the work of instruction; all work carried on by the societies and associations of students of the University. This Act did not require an annual report from the Council.

With regard to University College this Act simply repeated the law which came into force in 1853 and was continued in 1877.

The Lieutenant Governor in Council was empowered to make regulations respecting the retirement or superannuation of any professor, lecturer, officer, or servant of the University or University College. These regulations had to be laid before the Legislative Assembly immediately if in session or within seven days of the next session of the Legislature. If the Legislative Assembly disapproved of any regulation in whole or in part it was not enforced.

Another act⁴⁴ was passed on April 23, 1887 respecting the income and property of the University of Toronto, University College, and Upper Canada College. As in the Act of 1853⁴⁵ the Bursar continued to manage and administer all property of the University and College at Toronto under orders from the Lieutenant Governor. The Bursar still was required to submit an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor for transmittal to the Legislative Assembly. This report was to contain the total investments in the Permanent Fund with annual income therefrom; the amount received each year from fees, interest, donations or other sources; a detailed account of the amount spent on salaries, contingent expenses, and buildings, specifying the duties of persons receiving salaries and the purposes of all buildings.

While the Senate of the University, the Council of University College and the Bursar all were required to present an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor to be laid before the Legislative Assembly, generally these reports were not printed. Indeed the Committee on Printing of the Legislative Assembly had recommended that only one report be printed, that of the Senate for the academic year 1870/71.

In 1875 the Minister of Education, concerned about the lack of information on university education, made the following statement in his annual report: "The Public and High Schools are the educational agencies which come under the direct administration of this department. Other Institutions have in former reports been referred to in order to ascertain the state of education throughout the Province... It might, with advantage to the public interests, be made incumbent on all such institutions to report specifically in each year to Your Honour, in order that their returns may be collated by this department. These institutions comprise the University of Toronto, with University College and Upper Canada College, which are provincially endowed and are subject to the control of Your Honour in Council. Causes of social or denominational character have given origin to other colleges and institutions. The following possess university powers: The University of Victoria College, Cobourg; University and Queen's College, Kingston; University of Trinity College, Toronto; Albert University, Belleville; and Ottawa College."⁴⁶ This recommendation was not adopted. However, the following year the Bursar's statements were printed in the Sessional Papers.

In his combined report for 1880 and 1881 the Minister of Education recommended that the university, colleges, and schools provincially endowed and subject to the control of the Lieutenant Governor in Council should be under the jurisdiction of the Education Department since in their relations with government it was the Minister of Education who had to make the report.⁴⁷ While the provincially endowed university and colleges continued under the control of the Lieutenant Governor, gradually excerpts from the reports of the Senate and Council of University College were published as appendices to the annual Report of the Minister of Education. However, the report of the Bursar which was superseded in 1892/93 by the Auditor's report continued to be printed in the Sessional Papers. Indeed all reports respecting the finances of the University of Toronto and University College continued to be printed as Sessional Papers and not as an appendix to the Report of the Minister of Education.

A number of special reports were published between 1868 and 1900. These have been listed in chronological order.

Several studies were undertaken by the faculty. Some were printed as Sessional Papers, others were published by the printer to the Legislature but distributed by the Education Department. These studies have been listed in this section.

CHAPTER III

THE LEGISLATURE

Under the terms of the British North America Act¹ the Legislature for Ontario consisted of a Lieutenant Governor and an elected House to be known as the Legislative Assembly.

While the term Legislature was designated by the British North America Act for the government of Ontario, both the Statutes passed by the Legislature and the Journals of the Legislative Assembly were printed as publications of the Parliament of Ontario from 1867 to 1879.

The Legislative Assembly was composed of eighty-two members elected to represent the eighty-two electoral districts as defined in the first schedule to the Act. The Lieutenant Governor was required to call the first session of the Legislative Assembly within six months of the Act² coming into force.

All the laws which had been in effect in the Province, at the time of the Union, respecting elections were to be in force for the first election which was called for August 7, 1867. Provision was made, however, for the Legislature to change these laws³ through the enactment of new legislation. The first session of the first Legislature was called for December 27, 1867.

The Legislative Assembly was to be called annually thereafter by the Lieutenant Governor so that twelve months would not pass without a session. Each Legislative Assembly was to continue for four years but could be dissolved sooner by the Lieutenant Governor. Nine Legislative Assemblies were elected between 1867 and 1900. The fifth assembly was the only one to be dissolved after three years.

A number of changes were made, through legislation, in the number of electoral districts and the qualifications of voters. In 1874⁴ the number of electoral districts was increased from eighty-two to eighty-eight thus increasing the membership in the House to eighty-eight. In 1885, while the number of electoral districts remained the same, one district, namely, the city of Toronto returned three members bringing the total to ninety⁵. Three years later the property qualification of voters was abolished in favour of a residence qualification⁶.

Under the British North America Act, the provincial legislatures were given exclusive power to enact legislation in sixteen areas: amendments to the constitution of the Province, except the Office of Lieutenant Governor; direct taxation within the Province; borrowing money on the credit of the Province; establishment and tenure of provincial officers; management and sale of public lands; prisons; hospitals, asylums, charities; municipal institutions; saloon, tavern and other licenses; local works, incorporation of provincial companies; marriages; property and civil rights; administration of justice in the Province; imposition of punishment; and generally all matters of a merely local or private nature. The provincial Legislature also had the exclusive right to pass legislation in three other areas, namely: education, agriculture and immigration. However, the federal government could intervene in these areas and disallow any given statute or section of a statute.

The Legislative Assembly both issued publications of its activities and approved for publication many other works. The printed works which were directly related to the Legislative Assembly have been listed in this chapter under the relevant topic. Those works authorized by the House to be printed but which dealt more directly with the activities of other branches of government have been listed under the appropriate branch or department. Five special publications which were of direct interest to the Legislature have been listed below.

ELECTIONS

Under the British North America Act⁷ the Lieutenant Governor was empowered to issue writs for the first election of members to the Legislative Assembly. However, in order that the first election of members to the House of Commons of Canada would coincide with the provincial election in any electoral district, the Governor General was authorized to select the time for the elections and to appoint the Returning Officer.

⁷ Imperial Act of 30 and 31 Vict., c. 3, s. 89.

The Act also stated that the Legislative Assembly was to be composed of eighty-two members, elected to represent the eighty-two electoral districts as laid down in the first Schedule to the Act which was divided into two parts: part A listed the forty-three electoral districts which had been in existence in 1867, part B listed the thirty-nine new electoral districts which were established under this Act.

As the Legislature was to be called within six months after the British North America Act⁸ came into force the Lieutenant Governor issued writs for an election to be held on August 7, 1867.

All the laws in force, at the time of Union, respecting the qualifications and disqualifications of persons to be elected, as well as voters, the oath to be taken by voters, the Returning Officers, their powers and duties and the vacating of seats of members were to remain unchanged for this first election⁹. This meant that a member had to be a resident of the Province and own property valued at five hundred pounds sterling and be free of all debts. A voter had to be a British subject, male and twenty-one years of age, own property to the value of three hundred dollars or have property of an assessed yearly value of thirty dollars. If he lived in a township or parish the value had to be two hundred dollars or an assessed yearly value of twenty dollars.

Certain males who would qualify could not vote due to their position. These included chief justices, judges, customs officers, clerks of the peace, agents for the sale of crown lands, returning officers, election or poll clerks, etc.¹⁰

As the Legislature was required to meet at least once a year and could not continue beyond four years, elections had to be held at least every four years. The Lieutenant Governor, however, could dissolve the Legislature at any time within the four years.¹¹ Upon dissolution, an election had to be held in order that a new Legislature could be convened within the year. Nine Legislatures with thirty-four sessions met between 1867 and 1900 thus necessitating the holding of nine general elections.

During this period a number of acts were passed which not only dealt with the qualifications of members and voters but also with changes in the electoral districts. On January 23, 1869 an act¹² was passed respecting voters, who still had to be male and British subjects. The property qualifications were changed in that the amount of property free of debt varied depending on where the voter lived. For those living in a city, the value was four hundred dollars, in the towns three hundred dollars, and in incorporated villages and townships two hundred dollars. This Act did not include any qualifications for candidates to be elected. On December 24, 1869 a further Act¹³ was passed whereby a candidate for a seat in the Legislative Assembly no longer was required to own any real estate.

As population increased changes were needed in electoral districts. On December 21, 1874 an act¹⁴ was passed whereby some districts were abolished; others were split or were re-aligned to make way for an increased number within the same geographical area. As a result of this reorganization the number of electoral districts and members was increased from the original eighty-two to eighty-eight.

¹³ Act of 33 Vict., c. 4.

By a further act passed on March 30, 1885¹⁵ the number of members to be elected was increased to ninety. Thus for the first time provision was made for more than one member to be elected in an electoral district. The city of Toronto now was permitted to elect three members.

On March 23, 1888 the property qualification for voters was abolished¹⁶ except for certain electoral districts in Northern Ontario where there were no assessment rolls or voters' lists. The residence qualification now was changed in that a voter had to live in the Province for nine months preceding the time fixed by statute for compiling the assessment roll in which a person was entitled to be entered as a qualified voter.

In this study no attempt has been made to include the many lists of voters, since these lists were prepared and certified by the clerk of the municipality rather than by the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery and published by a printer in the municipality with no indication that they were official publications of the provincial government. Each list examined, however, was divided into three parts: part I, List of persons entitled to vote at municipal elections, and elections to the Legislative Assembly; part II, List of persons entitled to vote at municipal elections only; part III, List of persons entitled to vote at elections for the Legislative Assembly only.

None of the acts required that any publications be issued. However, the various statutes dealing with election of members to the Legislative Assembly were published. These have been listed in chronological order.

The Clerk of the Legislative Assembly in the role of the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery presented to the Legislative Assembly a return on the results of the general elections. These returns were printed in the Sessional Papers. For some general elections more than one return was presented and printed. These returns have been listed in chronological order under serials although a separate bibliographic citation has been given for each return since the wording varies considerably from return to return.

A number of special reports dealing with contested elections, judges' decisions, by-elections, etc. were printed. These reports also have been listed in chronological order.

RULES, ORDERS AND PROCEDURES

The Legislative Assembly at its second meeting, held on December 28, 1867 resolved to adopt, temporarily, for the conduct of the Legislative Assembly as far as practical, the rules, orders, and procedures of the House of Commons of Canada.¹⁷

On January 14, 1868 a "Select Committee was Appointed to Frame Regulations for the Government of the House".¹⁸ The rules were presented to the House the following day, adopted and printed.

On February 24, 1868 a Select Committee was appointed to revise the standing orders affecting bills relating to railways, canals and telegraphs. Five days later they presented a report which contained a draft of amended rules.¹⁹ When the rules and orders were bound, the report of this committee, which was paged independently, was bound in between pages twenty-eight and twenty-nine.

On January 16, 1874 a new "Select Committee to revise the Rules, Orders, and Regulations of the House" was appointed.²⁰ The same Committee was re-appointed on November 18, 1874²¹ and again on November 20, 1875²². The Committee presented its revisions on December 10, 1875. These revisions which were to come into force after the last day of that session were printed in the Journals.²³ They also were reprinted in a separate publication in 1876 and again in 1883.

On February 11, 1885, a Select Committee was appointed to consider whether new rules should be added or certain rules dealing with committees and private bills should be modified. On March 11, the Committee recommended that certain additions be made.²⁴ These were not issued in a separate publication until 1891.

Two editions of practice and procedure in the Legislative Assembly were compiled by the Clerk and printed.

The publications in this section have been listed in chronological order.

LAWS, STATUTES, ETC.

The first legislation passed, on February 28, 1868, by the Legislature, and cited as "The Interpretation Act" was an act respecting the statutes. This Act²⁵ was very specific respecting the wording, format and distribution of the statutes. The actual wording of the preamble of all statutes was laid down. All clauses were to follow "in a concise and enunciative order". The Clerk of the Legislative Assembly must ensure that the date of assent was endorsed on every act. If an act was reserved by the Lieutenant Governor, he must signify to the Legislative Assembly that the disallowed act had been forwarded by him to the Governor General in Council for approval of the disallowance. The date of endorsement of the act was the effective date for the commencement of the act unless the act had provided otherwise.

²⁴ ibid. v. 18, 1885, pp. 40, 104-105.

Specific instructions for the printing, binding, and classification of the Statutes were laid down.²⁶ They must be printed in royal octavo form on fine paper, in small pica type, thirty-two ems by fifty-five ems, including marginal notes in minion, such notes referring to the year and chapter of previous statutes when such were amended or repealed. The volumes were to be half-bound in cloth with backs of red sheep-skin and lettered. The public general acts were to be bound separately from local and private acts in separate volumes. However, if the Lieutenant Governor in Council decided the two types were to be bound in one volume, each type must have its own separate index.

The distribution of the Statutes also was very carefully laid down.²⁷ The Clerk of the Legislative Assembly, as soon as an act received assent, must forward a certified copy to the Queen's Printer. At the close of each session of the Legislature the Queen's Printer must print the acts and distribute the designated number of bound copies to the members of the Legislative Assembly as directed either by resolution of the Assembly or the Lieutenant Governor, and to public departments, administrative bodies and officers, throughout the Dominion of Canada as ordered by the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

When bills received assent the Provincial Secretary was to notify the Queen's Printer in order that he could print and distribute these to the groups listed above.

The Provincial Secretary also was to furnish to the Queen's Printer within fifteen days of the termination of a session of the Legislature a list of public departments, administrative bodies and officers to whom copies were to be sent. The Queen's Printer was required to make a report, in triplicate, to the Lieutenant Governor before the opening of each session of the Legislature, on the number of copies of the statutes which had been printed and distributed by him since the last session. The report was to contain the name of the department, administrative bodies, officers, and persons to whom copies had been sent; the number of copies delivered to each; under what authority; the number of copies remaining in his hands; and a detailed account of the expense incurred in carrying out this Act. This report was to be submitted to the Legislative Assembly within fifteen days of the opening of the session. Sections nine to fourteen of the Act remained in effect throughout the period under study. However, when the Statutes were revised in 1877 these sections were promulgated in a new act with the sections re-ordered²⁸ to some extent but with no change of substance. The Revised Statutes of Ontario for both 1887 and 1897 simply reprinted the 1877 revisions. Reports on the distribution of the Statutes were presented to the Legislative Assembly each year from 1873 to 1887. However, none of the reports were printed.

To cut down costs the Standing Committee on Printing recommended, to the Legislative Assembly on February 4, 1868, that six hundred copies of the bills, which had received royal assent, should be printed. This would include the number needed for the bound volumes of the statutes.²⁹ In 1878 the Standing Committee on Printing recommended that each newspaper in Ontario should receive one copy of the Statutes thus broadening the distribution list.³⁰ Each session of the Legislature passed legislation. When, however, only six acts were passed in the first session of the ninth Legislature held in 1898, these acts were held and bound with those of the second session of the ninth Legislature.

Under the British North America Act³¹ the government of Ontario was to be named Legislature. However, the Statutes for the first session of the first Legislature, 1867/68, up to and including the Statutes for the third session of the third Legislature, 1878, were printed as the Statutes of the Parliament of Ontario.

The first bill of the first session of the Legislature was not printed. All subsequent bills were printed. Each contained the number of the bill, session, Legislature, year of reign of the Queen, title of the bill, if private so stated; reading(s), author, place, and publisher. There is no covering title page for the bound volume. All bills for a session were numbered sequentially whether public or private.

Like the Statutes, the term Parliament not Legislature was used in printing the bills. However, unlike the Statutes the bills continued to be issued until 1880 under the term Parliament. During the first session of the fourth Legislature the change was made.

In order that a revision and consolidation of the Statutes could be promulgated by 1877, the Lieutenant Governor on June 24, 1874 appointed Commissioners for examining, revising, classifying and consolidating such of the Public General Statutes which had been passed by the Parliament of the late Province of Canada, which applied to Ontario under the present jurisdiction of the Legislature of the province of Ontario, and the Statutes passed by the Legislature of Ontario and contained in Roll X. The Commissioners also were to examine and arrange the Public General Statutes in force in Ontario over which the Legislature had no jurisdiction. These included Statutes of the Imperial Parliament, the Parliament of the late Province of Canada, and the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada which affected Ontario.³² The Commissioners were empowered to determine what Statutes, passed by the Legislature of Ontario, were still in force. These could be classified and clauses re-arranged but generally the original wording was to remain since these were revisions or consolidations not new laws. With regard to the Statutes passed by other jurisdictions, but affecting Ontario, no changes were permitted.

Four reports dealing with the 1877 revisions were presented to the Lieutenant Governor and printed as Sessional Papers. On February 10, 1876 an act was passed which permitted the Commissioners to repeal certain acts or parts of acts. These were published in Schedules A and B respectively to the Act.³³

That same year two drafts of the revisions were published, one being a two volume set, and the other a three part set.

On March 2, 1877 an "Act respecting the Revised Statutes of Ontario" was passed³⁴ which provided for the incorporation into the Revised Statutes of Ontario those Statutes which had been passed during the 1877 session of the Legislature. This same Act made provision for the Lieutenant Governor to declare by Proclamation when the Revised Statutes of Ontario would come into force, as well as for the printing by the Queen's Printer. The laws relating to the distribution of the annual Statutes did not apply to the Revised Statutes. They could only be distributed to persons and in such numbers as designated by the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

The Statutes were again consolidated in 1887. The instructions given to the Commission in 1874 for that revision were followed for this revision. Before the Revised Statutes for Ontario, 1887 were promulgated a draft consolidation and a second draft consolidation were published in 1886 with a further draft consolidation in 1887. On April 23rd, 1887 an act was passed³⁵ which allowed the Queen's Printer to print the Revised Statutes of Ontario 1887 and permitted the Lieutenant Governor in Council to issue a proclamation which would bring the Revised Statutes "into force and have the effect of law".

A further consolidation was published in 1897. No draft consolidations were published. The procedures followed for the proclamation, printing and distribution was laid down in an act³⁶ passed April 13, 1897. The provisions of this Act were similar to those contained in the 1877 and 1887 acts.

As provided by law each volume of the Statutes contains an index to the acts passed during the session. No provision was made for cumulations. The indexes in the decennial revisions cover only those Statutes still in force. To overcome this lack cumulations have been compiled by individuals who believed a need existed for such indexes. These include indexes to: repealed Statutes; Statutes of Ontario; and Statutes of Canada applicable to several of the provinces. These indexes have been listed in alphabetical order by author.

No attempt has been made to list individual acts. However, those which have been reprinted or reprinted with amendments have been listed. Acts dealing with a specific department of government will be listed with the publications of that department.

A number of individual acts and collections of acts, some with notes, which did not relate to a specific department, were published. These have been listed here in alphabetical order under special publications.

JOURNALS

The first resolution to be moved in the Legislative Assembly was a request for the printing of the Votes and Proceedings, once they had been sanctioned by the Speaker, who was to appoint a printer.³⁷ This resolution was turned over to the Standing Committee on Printing for action.

Votes and Proceedings were published for the first sitting of the first session of the first Legislature and for each sitting thereafter. Routine Proceedings were not printed until the third sitting of the first session of the first Legislature. In the first session of the first Legislature the Votes and Proceedings were printed as those of the Parliament of Ontario. Thereafter they used neither the title Parliament nor Legislature.

The Journals were printed for each session of the Legislature. However, the term Parliament of Ontario, not Legislature of Ontario, appeared on the title page of the Journals, as it had on the Statutes, for the first session of the first Legislature to and including the third session of the third Legislature. Thereafter the name was changed to Legislature.

The Journals contained an annual index which listed not only their contents but also those of the Sessional Papers. Reports of the standing and select committees, which were ordered to be published, were also indexed and bound with the Journals as appendices. These indexes were not published separately from the Journals. Four cumulated indexes were published, however, two of which indexed only the Journals and two indexed both the Journals and Sessional Papers.

DEBATES AND SPEECHES

No official debates were published between 1867 and 1900. However, the debates were reported in various newspapers. These debates were clipped from the newspapers and preserved in scrapbooks which today are known as the newspaper Hansard. Scrapbooks of clippings from the Globe contain the most complete record. However, the debates for five sessions namely: 1868/69, 1869, 1871/72, 1874 (2d session) and 1882/83 were not clipped. For those sessions the Globe itself must be consulted. In 1964 the Department of Public Records and Archives of Ontario microfilmed the newspaper Hansard. Since they microfilmed the scrapbooks this record is also incomplete.

A number of the speeches delivered in the Legislative Assembly by the members were printed. These have been arranged in alphabetical order under the name of the member who made the speech. Four debates on specific subjects in which various members took part were printed. These have been arranged in alphabetical order immediately following the speeches by the individual members.

SESSIONAL PAPERS

On January 9, 1868 the Standing Committee on Printing recommended that 750 copies of the departmental reports and 650 copies of the Sessional Papers be printed. The departmental reports were for the members of the Legislative Assembly, executive offices, local and dominion, newspapers, and members of the House of Commons and Senate from Ontario. The Sessional Papers went to members of the Legislative Assembly, the Legislative Library for exchange, members of the House of Commons and Senate from Ontario. Two hundred copies were printed for outside distribution.³⁸

³⁸ Ontario, Legislative Assembly. Journals, v. 1, 1867/68, pp. 9-10.

An act to define the privileges, immunities and powers of the Legislative Assembly, and to give summary protection to persons employed in the publication of Sessional Papers was passed on 19th December, 1868.³⁹ This Act permitted the Court to stop proceedings in a suit for publishing, provided that proof could be given that such publications had the authority of the Legislative Assembly.

The Sessional Papers were indexed annually in the index to the Journals. An annual list of papers also was printed in each bound volume of Sessional Papers.

Only one cumulated index dealing exclusively with Sessional Papers was published. However, two cumulated indexes were published covering the Journals and Sessional Papers. These have been listed in the section on Journals.

COMMITTEES

Committees appointed by the Legislative Assembly were of two types: select standing and select or special.

At the first session of the Legislative Assembly five select standing committees were appointed: (1) on privileges and elections, (2) on railways, (3) on miscellaneous private bills, (4) on standing orders, and (5) on printing. These committees were "empowered to examine and inquire into all such matters and things referred to them" by the House and could send for persons, papers and records.⁴⁰ In the second session a committee on public accounts was added.⁴¹

⁴⁰ Ontario. Legislative Assembly. Journals, v. 1, 1867/68, p. 3, 7.

⁴¹ Ontario. Legislative Assembly. Journals, v. 2, 1868/69, p. 3.

The select standing committees continued to be appointed on an annual basis. In 1880 an attempt was made to appoint the members for all standing committees for the term of the Legislature, subject to changes made by the House. This concept was not accepted and the motion was defeated. The reports of the select standing committees were printed either in the Journals of the Legislative Assembly or in an appendix to the Journals.

Only the reports for four of the select standing committees were printed as separate reports in the appendices to the Journals. Often only the final report was printed. Other reports were printed as part of the Journals. Such reports have not been listed.

The select committees were appointed to investigate some topic which had been brought to the attention of the Legislative Assembly. One exception to this was the library committee which generally was appointed annually but was designated a select and not a select standing committee. The terms of reference laid down generally included the power to hear submissions, take evidence on oath, call for documents, papers and things, using every means of securing information relevant to their investigations. When these reports were printed they also were included in the appendices to the Journals.

The select standing committees have been arranged in alphabetical order. The reports of these committees have been arranged in chronological order. The reports of the select committees have been arranged in chronological order. Submissions to the select committees which were printed have been listed immediately following the report of the committee.

LEGISLATIVE LIBRARY

On February 6, 1868 a select committee was appointed to assist the Speaker in the direction of the Library of Parliament.⁴² This committee made no report. Thereafter a select committee was appointed for each session of the Legislature except for those held in 1870/71, 1871/72 and 1898. Three reports presented to the Legislative Assembly were printed in the appendices to the Journals. These have been listed with the reports in the section on Committees. Fifteen other reports were presented and printed in the Journals.

The Librarian also presented a report to the Legislative Assembly for 1869, annually from 1873 to 1887, and for the years 1892-1893, 1895, and 1898-1899. The only report to be printed after 1887 was the one for 1895. The reports for 1869, 1873 and 1874 (both sessions), were printed only in the Journals. All other reports were printed in the Sessional Papers.

A number of catalogues of Library holdings were published. All the catalogues published between 1872 and 1891 were designated as catalogues of the Library of Parliament of Ontario. Thus the Library did not adopt the title Legislature at the time it was adopted for both the Statutes and Journals.

These special publications have been arranged in chronological order.

PRINTING

On January 8, 1868 the first Standing Committee on Printing was appointed by the Legislative Assembly with power to report from time to time, and to send for persons, papers, and records.⁴³ The next day the Committee presented a report ⁴⁴ in which they recommended: a contractor for printing; a contractor for binding and printing paper; the number of copies to be printed and distributed. Twelve hundred copies of the daily Votes and Proceedings were to be printed with an additional six hundred and fifty to be used for the bound volumes of the Journals. Each member of the Legislature was to receive eight copies of the daily votes and two copies of the bound Journals. The executive offices of both the provincial and federal governments, the newspapers in the Province and members of the House of Commons and Senate representing Ontario also were to receive copies of the daily votes. Neither the newspapers nor the executive offices were to receive a copy of the bound Journals. However, two hundred copies of the bound Journals were for outside distribution (which was not specified) and the Legislature Library received forty copies for exchange purposes.

Two hundred and fifty copies of the Orders of the Day (Routine Proceedings) were to be printed and only distributed to the members of the Legislature and executive offices of the provincial government.

While the Committee recommended that seven hundred and fifty copies of public bills and one hundred and fifty copies of private bills, both first reading, be printed they made no recommendations concerning the Statutes since the printing and distribution of these was carefully controlled through legislation.

A standing committee on printing continued to be appointed for each session of the Legislature. It reported to the Legislative Assembly several times each session.

Many of its recommendations dealt with whether or not a report, return, etc. should be printed. All reports presented to the Legislative Assembly received a sessional paper number. When a report was recommended for printing the Committee specified the number of copies to be produced. Generally the recommendations of the Committee were accepted. However, in a few instances when it recommended that a report should not be printed, the House would decide that the report should be printed. The reports of the Committee were printed in the Journals. However, five committee reports were printed as an appendix to the Journals. These have been listed in this chapter under the section headed "Committees."

In 1869 the Committee recommended that 500 copies of the Journals be printed to be sold by the Queen's Printer at 50 cents each.⁴⁵ In the fourth report to the House, the Committee recommended that the responsibilities of the Queen's Printer be increased in that he would in future send all documents to the Printing Office, all bills to the Law Clerk and that all documents and bills would be returned by the Printing Office to him for examination. The Queen's Printer would transfer the documents to the Office of Routine and Records for distribution.⁴⁶

By 1872 the Committee revised the number of copies of legislative documents to be printed. Generally there was an increase in the number ordered in 1868. The number of bound volumes of the Journals for sale, however, was reduced from five hundred to two hundred and fifty copies.⁴⁷

From 1873 to 1877, due to greatly increased prices, the contract let in 1868 for a ten year period for printing and binding had been altered several times in regard to the amount of money to be paid, without presenting a report to the House for approval. In 1877 the House demanded a copy of all documents relating to such alterations to the original contract.⁴⁸ In 1878 when the original contract expired, the Committee recommended that tenders should be called to submit estimates.⁴⁹ Though the original printers submitted a bid, the contract was let to another firm but this time for only five years instead of the ten year period.⁵⁰ The specifications signed by Robinson and Warwick were laid out in much greater detail than were those signed by Hunter, Rose, and Lemieux in 1868. A sample of every imprint with charges had to be approved by the Queen's Printer.⁵¹

In 1885 a sub-committee of the Committee on Printing was appointed to revise the distribution list for the legislative papers. The sub-committee recommended reductions in the number of copies to be printed, except for Votes and Proceedings which remained at one thousand copies and private bills (3rd reading) which remained at one hundred copies. Substantial reductions were recommended for all other papers.

The Legislative Assembly adopted the recommendations which were presented to them by the Committee on Printing on March 24, 1885.⁵⁵

In a further report the Committee recommended "that no printing in excess of the authorized number for distribution be executed without the sanction and signature of the Chairman of the Printing Committee or the Executive Head of some Department".⁵⁶

It was not too long before the Legislative Assembly realized that the number of printed copies of certain legislative papers would not meet the demand. Thus on March 8, 1886 the House accepted the recommendation of the Committee on Printing to increase the number of copies of Votes and Proceedings by one hundred and fifty copies.⁵⁷

On March 17, 1887 the Committee on Printing recommended that the number of copies of Journals be increased by one hundred and eighty and that twenty copies be held in reserve by the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly for special distribution. They further recommended that five hundred copies of the index to the Journals and Sessional Papers which was being compiled should be printed.⁵⁸

Over the years a surplus stock of statutes, revised statutes, and reports had developed. On March 8, the Committee recommended that this surplus should be distributed to the members, so many copies to each. In 1886 one hundred and fifty copies of an index to the debates and speeches from 1867/68 to 1886 in the Legislative Assembly had been printed. The Committee recommended that this index be revised to include the debates and speeches for 1887 and that five hundred copies of the revision be printed and bound in limp cloth. Two copies were to be distributed to each member. The remainder were to be sold by the Queen's Printer for one dollar per copy.⁵⁹

Since the newspapers in the Province received a copy of various legislative papers, in order to further reduce the cost of printing, the Committee recommended that the wrappers, used to distribute these copies, be printed with the name of the newspaper in a quantity sufficient for the next four years.⁶⁰

By 1888 when the number of copies of public bills did not meet the demand the Committee not only recommended that the number be increased from twelve hundred and fifty copies to fifteen hundred copies but that when government bills of unusual importance were introduced to the Legislative Assembly the promoter should order the Queen's Printer to print a specified number of extra copies.⁶¹ On February 23, the House passed the recommendation that no member of the House could authorize either printing or binding except through the Queen's Printer and that only the Head of a Department could order printing and binding which, as far as possible, should be given through the Queen's Printer.⁶²

On April 27, 1891, the Committee recommended that the Queen's Printer investigate the cost of supplying one copy of the Ontario gazette to publishers of each newspaper in the Province.⁶³

Concern over the cost of printing continued and fearing that the departmental reports were being distributed to the same persons by both the Queen's Printer and the department, the Committee on Printing on February 25, 1892 recommended that each department "be requested to send to the Chairman of the Committee on Printing, a copy of their distribution lists, to the end that duplicating in the distribution of reports, etc., may be avoided by members of the Legislature."⁶⁴ On March 18, it was further recommended that five hundred copies of these distribution lists be printed and distributed to members of the Legislature.⁶⁵ For ease in identification, the Committee recommended that each departmental report have its name printed lengthwise on the spine.⁶⁶

On May 5, 1893 the Queen's Printer was authorized to proceed with the printing of the wrappers for the distribution office once the distribution clerk had revised his list. All mechanics' institutes were now to be added to this list.⁶⁷

By 1895 the demand for a copy of the report of the Minister of Education had increased to such an extent that the Legislative Assembly authorized the number of copies to be increased from fifteen hundred to thirty-five hundred. Actually twenty-five hundred copies were being printed.⁶⁸ The following year the Committee recommended that two thousand extra copies of the fifth report of the Bureau of Mines be printed, thus bringing the number of copies of this report also to thirty-five hundred.⁶⁹

On December 17, 1897 the Committee recommended "that the several reports of the Toronto University be hereafter printed in one volume, instead of separately and that the President of the University be requested to supply the material for such reports to the proper officer, in order that it may be compiled and printed under one cover".⁷⁰

By 1899 the Committee began to examine the contents of reports and to distinguish between a report and appendices to a report. On March 17, they recommended that only one hundred copies of the report with appendices be printed of the Report relating to the registration of births, deaths, and marriages and the Report relating to the Provincial Board of Health. Two thousand copies of both reports without appendices were printed.⁷¹ While the full reports were printed for distribution only to members of the Legislature these copies found their way into libraries since no copy of just the report without the appendix was located.

Once the Legislative Assembly approved the recommendations of the Committee on Printing, the government printers were responsible for all printing and binding required by both the Legislature and the departments except for printing in a foreign language. By 1888 when Warwick and Sons signed the contract on September 4, for a five year period, other exemptions included examination papers required by the Education Department and the five thousand dollars worth of local printing and binding required by government institutions outside of Toronto.⁷² The same provision was made when the contract was awarded to Warwick Bros. & Rutter on October 13, 1893⁷³ and renewed on July 28, 1899.⁷⁴

The Queen's Printer was responsible for publishing the Ontario gazette which was the official organ of government "for the publication of proclamations, official and other notices".⁷⁵ The first issue of the Ontario gazette was published on March 7, 1868 and appeared weekly thereafter.

Since the Committee on Printing reported regularly to the Legislative Assembly no annual report was required and since the government printers were under contract they also were not required to present any annual report. The Queen's Printer was required to present an annual report only on the disposition of the Statutes which has been discussed in this chapter under "Statutes".

A number of special reports, respecting the letting of contracts for printing, paper and binding were prepared by the Queen's Printer. These reports have been listed in chronological order.

CHAPTER IV

THE EXECUTIVE

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Under the British North America Act¹ the executive power of the provincial government rested with the Lieutenant Governor, who could act alone or with the advice of an executive council whose members he appointed from among the elected representatives to the Legislative Assembly. The first Executive Council was to consist of the following executive officers: the Attorney General, the Secretary and Registrar of the Province, the Treasurer of the Province, the Commissioner of Crown Lands, and the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works. The Legislature could increase this number through legislation. Indeed it exercised this prerogative on March 2, 1872 when it passed an act² increasing the number of members to six and at the same time limiting it to this number.

On March 24, 1874 a further act was passed³ in which the office of Commissioner of Agriculture was completely separated from the office of Commissioner of Public Works. Each Commissioner was appointed an executive officer with membership on the Council. This brought the Council membership up to six.

When the Council of Public Instruction was dissolved and the duties of the Chief Superintendent of Education taken over by the Minister of Education, that Minister became eligible for appointment to the Executive Council.⁴ However, he could not be appointed when a vacancy occurred, since the membership of Council was still limited to six. This limitation continued until March 23, 1888 when by another act⁵ dealing with the Department of Agriculture the restriction was lifted. That year the number of members was increased to seven, thus allowing all the heads of departments to be members of the Executive Council.

On September 16, 1890 the first member of the Executive Council without portfolio was sworn in, thus bringing the membership to eight. A second member without portfolio was sworn in on July 21, 1896. In October, 1899 a third member without portfolio was added; thus the composition of the Executive Council now was seven members with a portfolio and three members without.⁶

The Executive Council did not issue any annual report or proceedings of its meetings. However, all orders-in-council must be published in the Ontario gazette. The Legislative Assembly occasionally requested that an order-in-council be laid before them for discussion. These were assigned a sessional paper number. If considered

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT

The British North America Act⁷ established the Attorney General's Office as one of the five executive offices of the civil government of Ontario. The Act made no provision for a premier. However, the Attorney General assumed this role from July 16, 1867 to October 21, 1899 with the exception of a ten month period between December 20, 1871 and October 25, 1872 when he held only the one office.⁸ The Treasurer of the Province also made no provision for a premier's office. The accounts for the Executive Council and Attorney General's Office which had been separate accounts from 1867 to 1871 were combined in 1872 under the heading Executive Council and Attorney General's Office.⁹

The name, Attorney General's Office, was changed to that of Attorney General's Department in 1886 in Public Accounts.¹⁰ However, the only legislative authority for this change was an act respecting the Education Department passed ten years previous on February 10, 1876 in which reference was made to the five departmental offices.¹¹ Between 1876 and 1886 both "office" and "department" was used. The term department has been used in this study for all reports printed after 1876.

The Attorney General was not required to issue an annual report. However on March 11, 1879 two acts were passed, one¹² which accepted the northerly and westerly boundaries of Ontario as laid down by arbitration and one¹³ "respecting the administration of Justice in the northerly and westerly parts of Ontario". Under the latter Act the Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint a stipendiary magistrate for this territory known as the District of Thunder Bay and the District of Nipissing. While the Act did not require any annual report the magistrate wrote a report each year from 1879 to 1890 except for the year 1888. These reports, which dealt with the geographical features of the territory rather than the administration of justice, were printed in the Sessional Papers. Since the same territory was not always covered in all of these reports, several listings have been made in order to show the actual territory reported upon from year to year.

From time to time the Legislative Assembly requested reports and returns respecting the various activities of this department. The reports, and returns, which were printed, have been listed in chronological order.

In 1881 an act¹⁴ was passed whereby an Inspector of Legal Offices was appointed, and required to present an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor. However, it was not until 1892 that the reports were addressed to the Lieutenant Governor. The reports from 1882 to 1891 were addressed to the Attorney General.

When the Provincial Municipal Auditor was appointed in 1897¹⁵ he presented his annual report to the Attorney General.

Four branches of government, however, were transferred from other departments to the Attorney General's Department, namely. The Inspector of Registry Offices in 1896, and Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent Children along with industrial schools in 1899 from the Provincial Secretary's Office; Inspector of Insurance and Registrar of Friendly Societies, and Registrar of Loan Corporations, in 1899, from the Commissioner of Crown Lands.

CORPORATIONS REGISTRAR

On March 10, 1882 when the Bureau of Industries was established¹⁶ it was empowered to collect from and tabulate facts on all municipal councils, school boards and public institutions. The officers of these institutions were required to answer promptly all official communications. In 1887, for the first time, the Bureau devoted one volume to loan and investment companies. In 1890 chattel mortgage statistics were added. From 1896 to 1900 only statistics on chattel mortgages were published by the Bureau.

By 1897 the number of loan and investment companies was increasing with a growing concern that information on them should be the concern of an officer of government. Thus on April 13, 1897 an act¹⁷ was passed which consolidated and amended the laws respecting building societies and loan corporations. The Lieutenant Governor in Council was required to appoint an efficient officer of the Public Service to be named the Corporations Registrar.

The Act also required every registered corporation to present an annual statement, within three months of the end of the calendar year, on the financial conditions and affairs of the corporation to the Corporations Registrar. The Registrar was required to establish and keep up to date three registers; (1) The Loan Companies' Register; (2) The Loaning Land Companies' Register; (3) The Trust Companies' Register. He also was required to have prepared an annual statement on the reports received from the corporations. The loan corporations statements were to be printed and distributed by the Registrar.

¹⁶ Act of 45 Vict., c. 6, s. 6.

¹⁷ Act of 60 Vict., c. 38.

The Act did not state which executive officer would be responsible for the Corporations' Registrar. The loan corporations statements for 1897 and 1898 were addressed to the Commissioner of Crown Lands. However, the 1899 and 1900 statements were addressed to the Attorney General.

Only one trust company, namely, The Toronto General Trusts Company which had been incorporated in 1872¹⁸ had issued an annual report. This company now was required to report to the Corporations Registrar.

The Toronto General Trusts Company

On March 2, 1872 an act¹⁹ was passed "to incorporate the Toronto General Trusts Company". The Company was required to present to the Lieutenant Governor and to the Legislative Assembly an annual statement, verified on oath of the officers, on the funds, property, and securities, within fifteen days of the opening of the Legislature. Two such statements were printed in the Sessional Papers. When the Corporations Registrar was appointed in 1897 the annual statements of this company were printed with the reports of the other trust companies.

One special return was also printed.

INSPECTOR OF INSURANCE AND REGISTRAR OF FRIENDLY SOCIETIES

Prior to 1876 a number of insurance companies received permission to operate in Ontario through individual acts passed by the Legislature. On February 10, 1876 an act²⁰ was passed to take effect July 1 respecting insurance companies licensed in ¹⁸ Act of 35 Vict., c. 73.

¹⁹ Act of 35 Vict., c. 83.

²⁰ Act of 39 Vict., c. 23.

Ontario. This Act which was administered by the Treasurer of Ontario, required him to publish in the Ontario gazette a semi-annual list of companies licensed under the Act. These companies were required to present an annual statement, on January 1 or within one month, under oath, to the Treasurer. From these statements the Treasurer was required to prepare an annual report on each company to be laid before the Legislative Assembly.

A further act²¹ was passed on March 11, 1879 whereby the Lieutenant Governor in Council was empowered to appoint an Inspector of Insurance who would act under the jurisdiction of the Treasurer of Ontario. The Inspector was to visit at least annually the head office of every insurance company in Ontario, and submit to the Treasurer a report of his findings. The reports were to be presented annually to Parliament (i.e. the Legislature). These reports were printed. The Inspector continued to submit his report to the Treasurer until 1889 when he began to submit it to the Provincial Secretary. In 1896 another change was made and the Inspector was placed under the Commissioner of Crown Lands where he remained until 1899 when the Attorney General assumed responsibility for this branch.

A further act²² was passed on April 14, 1892. This Act not only provided for an Inspector of Insurance, but also a Registrar of Friendly Societies, which included any corporation, society, association or fraternity, benevolent, mutual, provident, industrial, or co-operative required by law to be licensed for the transaction of insurance. Two registers were required: (1) The Insurance License Register; (2) The Friendly Society Register.

The Registrar of Friendly Societies was required to prepare, publish, and distribute an annual report from the friendly societies' statements. This report was incorporated with that of the Inspector of Insurance.

A number of insurance companies still were incorporated outside the Act of 1876 and required to submit an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor for transmittal to the Legislative Assembly, namely: Home Fire Insurance Company of Ontario, February 10, 1876²³; London Life Insurance Company, March 24, 1874²⁴; Mercantile Fire Insurance Company, March 24, 1874²⁵; Ontario Mutual Life Assurance Company, December 19, 1868²⁶; March 24, 1874²⁷; Union Fire Insurance Company, February 10, 1876²⁸. These reports were not printed except one for the Ontario Mutual Life Assurance Company.

A number of consolidations of acts with notes were published. These have been listed in alphabetical order. Several special reports also were published, and have been listed in chronological order.

INSPECTOR OF REGISTRY OFFICES

On March 4, 1868 an act²⁹ was passed whereby the Lieutenant Governor was to: establish a registry office in every riding, county, union of counties, and city in Ontario; and appoint a registrar for each registry office. The Act also specified what instruments and proceedings were to be registered.

The Registrar was required to keep a daily record of all fees and emoluments received by him specifying the actual amount received for registering each instrument, searching the records, and extracts or copies of the instruments. He also was required under oath to present an annual return of all fees and emoluments to the Lieutenant Governor on January 15. These returns were printed in the Sessional Papers from 1868 to 1895. After that date the returns were printed in the Report of the Inspector of Registry Offices.

²⁹ Act of 31 Vict., c. 20.

When necessary the Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint an Inspector of Registry Offices who would make a report to him for information. From time to time the Lieutenant Governor appointed an inspector who reported to him. While reports on individual offices were requested by the Legislative Assembly it was not until 1889 that the Inspector of Registry Offices issued a general report which he termed the first report. This was printed. The next report to be printed was for 1893. No report was printed for 1894. In 1895 when a new Inspector was appointed he also issued a report which he termed the first which in fact became the first annual report to be printed. These three reports were addressed to the Provincial Secretary. All subsequent reports were addressed to the Attorney General.

Between 1868 and 1894 a number of special reports were printed in the Sessional Papers. These have been listed in chronological order.

PROVINCIAL MUNICIPAL AUDITOR

On April 13, 1897 an "Act³⁰ to make better provision for keeping and auditing municipal and school accounts" was passed. The Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint a Fellow of the Association of Chartered Accountants or another expert accountant as "The Provincial Municipal Auditor".

The Provincial Municipal Auditor, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, was required to establish the numbers and forms of books of accounts to be kept, system of bookkeeping, and the manner in which books of accounts, vouchers, receipts, moneys, and securities were kept by both the municipalities and school boards. He also was to audit all accounts and moneys of these institutions.

While the Act did not state which executive officer would administer the Act it did require the auditor to present an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor on the number and type of investigations carried out, either by him or under his direction. If as a result of such investigations the auditor needed changes made to the Act he was empowered to so recommend in his report.

The Provincial Municipal Auditor presented his first annual report in 1897 to the Attorney General. These reports were printed.

SUPERINTENDENT OF NEGLECTED AND DEPENDENT CHILDREN

On May 27, 1893 an act³¹ was passed "for the prevention of cruelty to, and better protection of children". The Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint a superintendent of neglected and dependent children who would be responsible to a member of the Executive Council, who for the time being was the Provincial Secretary.

The Superintendent was required to assist in the establishment of children's aid societies, inspect industrial schools, which at this time came under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Education, inspect all houses registered for the reception of children, and submit an annual report on his various activities. While this Act required the Superintendent to inspect industrial schools, it was not until April 7, 1896 when a further act³² was passed that the official responsible for the Superintendent also was made responsible for industrial schools. Thus industrial schools were transferred from the Minister of Education to the Provincial Secretary.

The Superintendent issued his first report for a six month period, July to December 1893, thereafter annually. In 1899 the Superintendent was placed under the jurisdiction of the Attorney General.

Two consolidations of the statutes were published. Two special reports also were printed. These have been cited in chronological order.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Under the terms of the British North America Act³³ the provincial legislatures were empowered to enact legislation respecting agriculture and immigration in so far as it was not repugnant to the Parliament of Canada. Parliament also was empowered to pass laws from time to time respecting agriculture and immigration in all or any of the provinces. The Act also empowered the Lieutenant Governor to appoint, as one of the executive officers, a commissioner of agriculture and public works.³⁴

As the economy of Ontario was mainly agricultural, the Legislature passed an act³⁵ on March 4, 1868 for "the encouragement of agriculture, horticulture, arts and manufactures". In recognition of the dual responsibility of the executive officer, the Department was named the Department of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works. However, when dealing with matters purely agricultural this officer was required to use the title Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts.

A Bureau of Agriculture and Arts, attached to the Department, was to be presided over by the Commissioner. The Board of Agriculture of Upper Canada, responsible for the agricultural societies, which had been established in 1850³⁶ was renamed the Council of the Agricultural and Arts Association. The Commissioner was an ex officio member of the Council. Other associations, administered under this Act and required to report to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts, were Association of Mechanics' Institutes of Ontario, horticultural societies, Fruit Growers' Association, agricultural societies - county or electoral division societies, and township societies.

³³ Imperial Act of 30 and 31 Vict., c. 3, s. 96.

³⁴ ibid. s. 63.

³⁵ Act of 31 Vict., c. 29.

³⁶ Canada (Province) Act of 13 and 14 Vict., c. 73.

The Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts was required to submit annually to the Legislature a detailed and succinct report of his proceedings. The first report was issued for the year 1868. It contained the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts as well as the reports of the various associations which were required to report to him. The Commissioner continued to issue an annual report until 1884. In 1884 he presented to the Legislature only the reports of the various associations. In 1885 he presented his last report. Thereafter only the reports of the associations were presented to the Legislature.

The growth and development of Ontario was dependent upon immigration. Thus the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works was made responsible for immigration from 1869 to 1873. In 1874 a Commissioner of Immigration was appointed to be attached to one of the executive offices. The Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts served as that officer until 1876 when the Secretary and Registrar of the Province became the Commissioner of Immigration, a post he held until 1888 when once more immigration and agriculture were united under the one executive officer until 1900.

On January 28, 1869 an act³⁷ was passed by which the Department of Public Works was established as a department. However, for the time being the one executive officer was to be responsible for both agriculture and public works and have the title of Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works.

A further act³⁸ was passed on March 24, 1874 by which the Department of Public Works was established under its own Commissioner. However, it was not until March 2, 1877 that a new act³⁹ respecting agriculture was passed. This Act, known as the "Agriculture and Arts Act", established the Department of the Commissioner of Agriculture and retained the title of Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts for the executive officer.

By an amendment to the Agriculture and Arts Act passed on March 5, 1880⁴⁰ the branches respecting Arts such as the Association of the Mechanics' Institutes which had been established on March 4, 1868⁴¹ and the Ontario Society of Artists, established on March 2, 1877⁴² were transferred from the Department of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts to the Education Department. This transfer did not change the name of the Department. Indeed when a further act⁴³ was passed on March 6, 1886 it stated that the Department was still to be known as the Department of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts. However, when the annual report for that year was issued it was printed as the Annual report of the Department of Agriculture. Two years later on March 23, 1888 an act⁴⁴ was passed by which the title of the Commissioner was changed to Minister and the Department became officially the Department of Agriculture.

The Minister of Agriculture was to assume all the functions, duties and powers which had been vested in the Commissioner. These had been greatly increased since 1868 by the addition of the following associations: (1) Entomological Society, incorporated in 1871⁴⁵; (2) Dairymen's Association, established in 1873⁴⁶; (3) Ontario Agricultural College, opened in 1874, legislative status, 1880⁴⁷; (4) Poultry Association, established in 1879⁴⁸; (5) The Bureau of Industries, established in 1882⁴⁹; and (6) Bee-keeper's Association, incorporated in 1886⁵⁰.

³⁷ Act of 32 Vict., c. 28.

³⁸ Act of 37 Vict., c. 26.

³⁹ Act of 40 Vict., c. 17.

In addition to the above the Minister was required to assume the functions, duties and powers of the Registrar General which formerly had been vested in the Secretary of the Province.⁵¹ These duties were transferred in 1891 to the Treasurer. The Minister also was responsible for the Clerk of Forestry from 1883, when this office was established, until 1895 when a Bureau of Forestry was established in the Department of Crown Lands.

In 1889 the Inspector of Factories, which had been appointed under the Department of Public Works, was transferred to this Department.⁵² The Minister of Agriculture was also responsible for the Inspector of Mines from 1890⁵³ to 1891 when the Bureau of Mines was established under the Department of Crown Lands.⁵⁴

Further changes were made in 1895. The Council of the Agriculture and Arts Association was abolished.⁵⁵ However, the live stock associations were required to report directly to the Minister. Farmers' institutes which were to be established in each agricultural district also were required to report directly to the Minister.

When the Provincial Instructor in Road-making was appointed by an order in council dated April 15, 1896 he was attached to the Department of Agriculture where he remained until 1900 when he was transferred to the Department of Public Works as the Commissioner of Highways. From 1891 to 1895 the Minister issued a list of secretaries of the various agricultural associations. In 1900 the Minister included the Annual report of the Canadian Association of Fairs and Exhibitions although it was dated 1901. Several consolidations of the Statutes also were published. These have been arranged in chronological order. Numerous special reports were printed. These have been arranged in chronological order.

AGRICULTURE AND ARTS ASSOCIATION OF ONTARIO

An act⁵⁶ was passed on March 4, 1868 for "the encouragement of agriculture, horticulture, arts and manufactures". The Agricultural Association of Upper Canada was renamed the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario. The Board of Agriculture was renamed the Council of the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario. For purposes of administration Ontario was divided into twelve agricultural districts, each consisting of from three to five county or electoral division associations as laid down in schedule A appended to the Act. The Council was composed of twelve representatives one from each district elected by the members of the county or electoral division societies, plus the following ex officio members: The Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts, all professors of agriculture in chartered colleges and universities, the Chief Superintendent of Education, the President of the Fruit-Growers' Association, and the President of the Association of Mechanics' Institutes of Ontario.

The duties of the Council were to: (a) hold an annual fair or exhibition; (b) establish an experimental farm in connection with a public school, college or university with the approval of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts; (c) import improved breeds of animals, new varieties of grains, seeds, vegetables, machinery, etc.; (d) promote improvement in agriculture; and (e) establish a veterinary school.

The Council was required to present to the Bureau of Agriculture an annual report of proceedings of the annual meeting, resolutions, by-laws or other formal proceedings on or before July 1. The first report was presented for 1869 and published as one of the appendices to the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts. In addition to the required annual report the Council could publish reports, essays and lectures which they might consider valuable for the dissemination of information.

As new societies were formed under the aegis of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts, the presidents of those societies were added as ex officio members of Council as follows: Entomological Society, February 15, 1871⁵⁷; Dairymen's Association, March 29, 1873⁵⁸; Ontario Society of Artists, March 2, 1877⁵⁹; Poultry Association, ⁵⁶ Act of 31 Vict., c. 29.

⁵⁷ Act of 34 Vict., c. 33.

⁵⁸ Act of 36 Vict., c. 36.

⁵⁹ Act of 40 Vict., c. 17.

March 11, 1879⁶⁰; the President of the Ontario College of Agriculture and Experimental Farm and the Professor of Agriculture, March 5, 1880.⁶¹

On March 2, 1877 a new act⁶² for "the encouragement of agriculture, horticulture, arts and manufactures" was passed whereby the new electoral district of Algoma, Simcoe, Muskoka and Parry Sound was made the thirteenth agricultural district. The President of this district became the thirteenth member of Council.

Under this Act the Council now was required to send a report of the proceedings during the previous calendar year to the Bureau of Agriculture on or before April 1. The Commissioner of Agriculture could require a copy of all resolutions, by-laws and other formal proceedings.

By a further act⁶³ passed on March 5, 1880 the Association of Mechanics' Institutes and the Ontario Society of Artists were transferred to the Department of Education. Although the Act did not so state it can be assumed that the presidents of these associations would cease to be ex officio members of Council. When a further act⁶⁴ was passed on March 10, 1882 Council was to consist only of the thirteen presidents from the agricultural districts. All ex officio memberships were cancelled.

On April 16, 1895 an act⁶⁵ was passed by which the Agriculture and Arts Association and Council were to be abolished on January 1, 1896. All property vested in the Association was to be transferred to the Crown.

In 1883 the report of the Association which had been published annually as an appendix to the Report of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts now was published as a separate report. It, however, was bound with the other agricultural association reports. In recognition of the founding of the Board of Agriculture of Upper Canada in 1846 the report of the Association for 1884 was numbered thirty-nine. Actually this was only the thirty-eighth report since no report was issued in 1868. However the sequential numbering continued and the last report issued for 1895 was numbered fifty.

The Transactions of the Board of Agriculture and Agricultural Association of Upper Canada continued under the title Transactions of the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario. The last volume located covered the years 1869 to 1871. A Journal of the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario was published from 1867 to 1879.

Three volumes of The Canada herd book were published between 1867 and 1875.

Several special reports were printed. These have been arranged in chronological order.

THE BEE-KEEPERS' ASSOCIATION OF ONTARIO.

Under the terms of the Agriculture and Arts Act⁶⁶ passed on March 26, 1886 "The Bee-Keepers' Association of Ontario" which had existed for several years now was declared a body corporate. As with all agricultural associations as soon as they became incorporated, and received financial support they were required to submit an annual report of proceedings and reports of the Association to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts within forty days of holding the annual meeting.

The first report to be published by the Department of Agriculture was for the year 1888; however, the report for 1891 was called report of the twelfth annual meeting. For the years 1888 to 1890 the report of the Bee-Keepers' Association was published jointly with that of the Poultry Association. Thereafter it was published as a separate report.

On April 7, 1890 the Association was empowered to appoint an inspector of apiaries⁶⁷ whose main duty was the inspection of infected apiaries. The Association now was required to include in its annual report to the Minister of Agriculture a statement of this inspector's activities including the number of colonies destroyed, and the localities where found.

No special reports were published by this Association.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE AND ARTS

The Bureau of Agriculture, established under the Parliament of the Province of Canada, was renamed the Bureau of Agriculture and Arts by an act⁶⁸ passed on March 30, 1868. The Bureau was attached to the Department of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works. The Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts was required, in connection with his Bureau, to collect facts and statistics relating to the agricultural, mechanical and manufacturing interests of the Province, and establish a museum, illustrative of agriculture, horticulture, and arts and manufactures, and a departmental library. On March 10, 1882 a further act⁶⁹ was passed which abolished the Bureau of Agriculture and Arts and established the Bureau of Industries. No report for the Bureau separate from that of the Commissioner was published.

The Board of Arts and Manufactures for Upper Canada was not continued under the act of 1868. The Journal published by the Board was discontinued with the February 1868 issue.

BUREAU OF INDUSTRIES

The Bureau of Industries established by an act⁷⁰ passed on March 10, 1882 was attached to the Department of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts. The Bureau under the direction of the Commissioner was responsible for collecting, tabulating, and publishing agricultural and industrial information. The Commissioner, with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, was empowered to establish a reciprocal arrangement with the federal Department of Agriculture whereby he would collect and transmit information on the agricultural, manufacturing, and other interests of the Province in return for obtaining similar information of interest to the Province which had been collected by the federal Department.

The day to day operation was carried on by a Secretary of the Bureau of Industries, appointed by the Lieutenant Governor, but responsible to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts. The Secretary was required to submit to the Commissioner a detailed and succinct report of the proceedings of the Bureau within thirty days of the opening of each session of the Legislature. The first annual report was submitted for 1882. In 1886 the report was published in five parts. The following year four volumes containing six parts were published. The number of volumes and parts published varied from year to year as well as the contents. A title page with full bibliographic citation frequently was added to each part. However for this study a detailed contents has been cited rather than a citation of the different title pages. The two appendices published as volume three for the years 1896 and 1897 also have been issued as two separate publications, each with its own title page, and collectively, under the citation Ontario Bureau of Industries Papers and Records, 1896 and 1897.

The Bureau also published a bulletin respecting crops, live stock and statistics. The contents of this bulletin have been listed.

One special report was printed.

COUNTY OR ELECTORAL DIVISION AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES

The Act⁷¹ passed on March 4, 1868 for "the encouragement of agriculture, horticulture, arts and manufactures" made provision for an agricultural society to be established in each of the county or electoral divisions which were identified in Schedule A appended to the Act. The objects of these county or electoral division agricultural societies were to: (a) hold meetings for discussion and hearing lectures on the theory and practice of improved husbandry or other industrial processes, (b) promote the circulation of agricultural, horticultural and mechanical journals, (c) import or procure high grade seeds, plants and animals, (d) encourage essays of a scientific nature relating to agriculture, horticulture, manufacture and works of arts, and (e) award premiums for excellence in any agricultural or horticultural production or article of manufacture.

In addition to the county or electoral division societies, township agricultural societies could be organized upon petition of fifty citizens. Horticultural societies could be established, with the consent of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts, in any town or city with a population of two thousand or more.

The Secretary of each county or electoral division society was required to submit a certified annual report to the Bureau of Agriculture, on or before March 1, which contained the reports submitted at the annual meeting, proceedings during the year, list of members, prizes awarded, and a detailed statement of receipts and disbursements of the society with a separate statement of the expenses of management.

The township and horticultural societies were required to submit a similar statement to the Secretary of the County or Electoral Division Society for transmittal to the Bureau of Agriculture. An analysis of these reports was published in an appendix to the annual report of the Commissioner for the years 1867 to 1882. The secretaries of the electoral divisions also submitted to the Bureau of Agriculture reports on crops which were analyzed and published in an appendix to the annual report of the Commissioner for the years 1867 to 1875.

The agricultural societies which were required to report annually to the Bureau received grants from the unappropriated monies held by the Treasurer of the Province. From 1869 to 1881 an annual report on the amount spent was published also in the appendix to the annual report of the Commissioner. In 1882 the report was incorporated into the Analysis of reports of the agricultural and horticultural societies.

When the Bureau of Industries was established in 1882, the analyses of various activities were transferred to that Bureau and published in its annual report.

No special reports were published.

DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATIONS OF THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

The Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts in his report for 1870 emphasized, for the first time, the potential of dairy products in Ontario.⁷² In 1872 the Commissioner reported that the Canadian Dairymen's Association (in fact an Ontario association) with headquarters in Belleville had held an organizational meeting in 1867⁷³ and issued a report. When the 1868 meeting was held, its report was called the first.

On March 29, 1873 an act⁷⁴ was passed which granted permission for the Canadian Dairymen's Association and the Ontario Dairymen's Association (Ingersoll) to organize under the title of "The Dairymen's Association of Ontario" and thus qualify for the annual grant, made to agricultural societies, from the unappropriated funds of the Province. The Act required that a full report of the proceedings of the Association be presented to its annual meeting, and a copy of the report with a statement of receipts and expenditures be submitted to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts. Nine (actually ten, counting the organizational meeting) reports were printed between 1867 and 1876 and issued in seven volumes.

⁷⁴ Act of 36 Vict., c. 36.

In 1876 when the Association decided to establish a factory system for the production of butter and cheese it also decided that this object could best be met by splitting the Association into an eastern and a western association. It also decided to hold a joint meeting in 1877 with the American Dairymen's Association. No annual report other than what was published in the proceedings of the American Dairymen's Association was issued for 1877.

On March 2, 1877 an act⁷⁵ was passed whereby the Dairymen's Association of Ontario was divided into two associations. One Association, to be known as "The Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario", was to coincide with the area encompassed by the Agricultural Divisions numbers one to six. The other association, to be known as "The Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario", was to coincide with the areas encompassed by Agricultural Divisions numbers seven to thirteen.

Each association was required to present to the Commissioner of Agriculture within forty days of the annual meeting a full report of the proceedings of the association, the proceedings of the annual meeting, and a detailed statement of the receipts and expenditures of the association. While annual reports were presented to the Commissioner, the first to be printed with the other agricultural departmental reports was the report of the annual meeting of the Dairymen's Association for Western Ontario for 1884. The first six reports, however, for this association had been published by them. No copy of the ninth meeting held in 1886 was located. The first report to be printed for the annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario was the eighth, held in 1885.

On February 1, 1883 an act⁷⁶ known as the Ontario Creameries Act was passed whereby three creameries were established under three managers, each responsible to the Commissioner of Agriculture. Each manager was required to present an annual report to the Commissioner. By a further act⁷⁷ passed on March 26, 1886 the Ontario Creameries Association was declared a body corporate. The first annual convention was held in 1886. A report of its proceedings was printed.

By 1886 in order to bring the reports of the dairymen's associations and creameries association under one main report, a covering title Report of the dairymen and creamery associations was used for the three reports which continued to be printed with their own titles. This covering title varied from year to year.

The three associations continued to present an annual report to the Minister of Agriculture until 1897. On April 13, 1897 a further act⁷⁸ was passed by which the creamery associations were amalgamated with the dairymen's associations. The names were also changed to Cheese and Butter Association of Eastern Ontario, and Cheese and Butter Association of Western Ontario. These two associations presented an annual report to the Minister continuing the sequential numbering used by the former associations. Both reports were printed.

⁷⁵ Act of 40 Vict., c. 17.

⁷⁶ Act of 46 Vict., c. 5.

⁷⁷ Act of 49 Vict., c. 11.

⁷⁸ Act of 60 Vict., c. 11.

On April 30, 1900 a further act⁷⁹ was passed which once more changed the name of the associations. The Cheese and Butter Association of Eastern Ontario once more became the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario. Likewise the Cheese and Butter Association of Western Ontario became the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario. The Department of Agriculture continued to publish the annual reports.

In 1899 two further organizations dealing with dairies were established, namely the Cheese and Butter-Makers' Association of Western Ontario and the Dairy Schools of Ontario. They each presented an annual report to the Minister which was included with the other annual reports of the dairymen's associations.

Two special reports were published.

ENTOMOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF ONTARIO

The Entomological Society of Canada was organized in Toronto in September 1862 with the following objects: (a) the preparation of as complete a collection as possible of Canadian insects; (b) a depository of duplicate specimens for distribution to members; and (c) holding of meetings for advancement of science.⁸⁰ This society was incorporated under an act⁸¹ passed on February 15, 1871.

The name of the Society was changed from Entomological Society of Canada to The Entomological Society of Ontario. The Society was required to submit an annual report of proceedings to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts. The first report was presented for the year 1871. From 1871 to 1882, the reports were published in the appendix to the Annual report of the Commissioner. Commencing in 1883 the reports were published separately, but still by the Department of Agriculture.

Each report published a number of papers dealing with entomological subjects as well as the proceedings of the annual meeting. The first report to be numbered was the report for 1879 which was named the ninth. The next year, however, the report was numbered eleven. This change in numbering was to recognize a report on noxious insects, published in 1871 but which contained the activities for 1870, and which had been numbered the first annual report. Both Baynes-Reed and Bethune in their indexes to the annual reports of the Entomological Society accepted the 1870 report as the first.

The annual report continued to have a section on noxious and beneficial insects.

One special report was published.

FACTORIES INSPECTION BRANCH

An act⁸² for "the protection of persons employed in factories" known as the "Ontario Factories Act" was passed on March 25, 1884 in which the Lieutenant Governor in Council was instructed to appoint inspectors in areas where factories existed, make regulations under which the inspector would operate, and proclaim when the Act would come into force.

An inspector was required to present an annual or any other report to the Legislative Assembly only when directed to do so by the Lieutenant Governor.

⁸² Act of 47 Vict., c. 29.

The regulations for enforcing the Act were issued on November 29, 1887.⁸³ The Commissioner of Public Works was made responsible for administering the Act and regulations. The first annual report of the inspectors of factories was issued in 1888.

When this Act⁸⁴ was amended on March 23, 1888 the administration of the Act was transferred from the Commissioner of Public Works to the Minister of Agriculture. The annual reports of the inspectors were now presented to the Minister of Agriculture and published by his Department.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES

The Farmers' Institute system was established in January 1885. Twelve meetings were held that year.⁸⁵

In 1887 the Permanent Central Farmers' Institute of Ontario was organized. The following year a report of proceedings of the second annual meeting was published. The report for the eighth annual meeting published in 1894 was the last report to be published separate from the report of the Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes.

On April 6, 1895 when the Agriculture and Arts acts were consolidated and amended⁸⁶ at least one Farmers' Institute for the dissemination of information on agriculture was to be established in each agricultural district. However, the Lieutenant Governor, upon the recommendation of the Minister of Agriculture, could establish more than one institute per district.

While the above statute did not require any annual report per se, it stipulated that all reports or returns regularly required by the Department of Agriculture be made. All rules and regulations must be approved by the Lieutenant Governor.

FRUIT GROWERS' ASSOCIATION OF ONTARIO

On March 4, 1868 an act⁸⁹ was passed in which the Fruit Growers' Association of Upper Canada, organized in 1859 in Hamilton, was named the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario. The Association was required to submit to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts an annual report of its proceedings. The first annual report was presented for the year 1868. All reports between 1868 and 1882 were printed as an appendix to the report of the Commissioner. When the report for 1883 was published it was called the fifteenth annual report. In fact it was the sixteenth. In 1900 when the association wished to honour the founding date of the organization it changed the numbering sequence of the annual meeting but did not change the error in numbering the annual reports. Thus the report for 1900 is the thirty-second annual report for the forty-first annual meeting. However, the following year the decision was reversed and the 1901 report became the thirty-third annual report for the thirty-third annual meeting. From 1874, at least, these annual reports were also published jointly with the reports of the Entomological Society. The reports for each association had its own title page but in addition had a covering title page Report of the Fruit Growers' Association of the province of Ontario to which is appended the Report of the Entomological Society.

At the meeting of the Fruit Growers' Association, held in 1893, "a committee was appointed to devise a practical scheme for experimental horticulture"⁹⁰. The committee's recommendation that a board of control be established with representatives from both the Ontario Agriculture College and the Fruit Growers' Association was approved by the Minister of Agriculture. The first annual report of the Fruit Experiment Stations was published in 1894 by the Department of Agriculture. This report has been listed with the other annual reports of the Ontario Agricultural College and Experimental Farm.

In 1895 the spraying of orchards was commenced. The following year a superintendent of spraying was appointed. He presented three annual reports which were published by the Department of Agriculture. Another activity undertaken by the Fruit Growers' Association was the elimination of the San José scale which was first found on the fruit trees in Kent County in 1897.⁹¹ A report on the disease was included in the annual report. On January 17, 1898 an act⁹² was passed which prohibited the importation of scale infested trees. The Act also required the appointment of inspectors who would examine fruit trees for the disease. In the report of the President of the Association for 1898 he expressed enthusiasm for the way in which both the federal and provincial ministers of agriculture had dealt with the problem. While the Act did not require an annual report, when an Inspector of San José Scale was appointed in 1898 he made a report for 1900 which was published by the Department. On April 1, a further act⁹³ respecting the San José scale was passed. This Act dealt specifically with fumigation. An inspector was appointed for this purpose. He issued his first annual report in 1899.

A number of special reports were published. These have been arranged in chronological order.

LIVE STOCK ASSOCIATIONS

When the Agriculture and Arts Act⁹⁴ was amended on March 10, 1882, the duties of the Council of Agriculture and Arts Association respecting live stock were extended. The Council now was required to aid "in the introduction of new and improved breeds of animals, either from other countries or provinces, or from one part of the Province to another"; and, offer "premiums for reports on the breeding, rearing and feeding of animals, the management of the dairy, the production of wool". On March 26, 1886 a further act⁹⁵ was passed by which the Council was required to make an annual report on these activities.

As a result of these acts a number of associations were organized for promoting the development of a better breed of animal. Several organizations although provincially based used either the term "Dominion" or "Canadian" in their title. The first such organization to be established was the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association in 1886. Its first report, however, was not published until 1892. During the next few years the following organizations were established: Clydesdale Horse Breeders' Association, 1887; Dominion Ayrshire Breeders' Association, 1888; Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association, 1888; Dominion Swine Breeders' Association, 1889; Shire Horse Breeders' Association, 1890; Canadian Hereford Breeders' Association, 1891; Dominion Cattle Breeders' Association, 1892; Hackney Horse Society, 1892; Canadian Horse Breeders' Association, 1895; and, Saddle and Carriage Horse Breeders' Society of Canada, 1900.

⁹⁴ Act of 45 Vict., c. 4.

⁹⁵ Act of 49 Vict., c. 11.

Up to 1895, except for the Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association and Dominion Swine Breeders' Association, the annual reports which were published were printed as part of the Annual report of the Agriculture and Arts Association of Ontario. With the abolition of the Agriculture and Arts Association of Ontario on January 1, 1896⁹⁶ the annual reports now were published with those of the Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association and Dominion Swine Breeders' Association under the title Annual reports of the Live Stock Associations.

In 1899, when a new secretary was appointed in the Department of Agriculture, he was made responsible only for the Dominion Cattle Breeders' Association, Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association, and Dominion Swine Breeders' Association. The other associations were placed under the Registrar of Live Stock of the province of Ontario.

Each association continued to issue an annual report, which has been listed with the relevant organization.

In his report for 1898/99 the Secretary refers to the publication of the Ontario agricultural gazette as one of the accomplishments of the year⁹⁷. The following year he stated that the Agricultural gazette, the official organ of the Live Stock Associations, was exerting an influence which could not be obtained in any other way. Unfortunately no copies of the Gazette were located.

Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association

An attempt was made in 1876 to organize a sheep breeders' association in Ontario.
However, since most of the sheep breeders belonged to American societies they did not feel the need for a Canadian organization at that time. In 1888 the authorities of the Ontario Agricultural College made a further attempt, and were successful in establishing the Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association. In 1890 the first report, covering the activities of 1889, was printed as a Sessional Paper. Annual reports were published thereafter. When the report for 1893 was published it was numbered the sixth instead of the fifth which it in fact was. This error was not corrected and the sequential numbering continued from the sixth report.

From 1895 the report of the Association was printed with the reports of the other live stock organizations which was given the covering title Annual reports of the Live Stock Associations of Ontario. In addition to the reports presented to the annual meeting of the Association numerous papers by leading authorities in the field were included.¹⁰³

ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE AND EXPERIMENTAL FARM

In the Act¹⁰⁶ passed on March 4, 1868 for the "encouragement of agriculture, horticulture, arts and manufactures" provision was made for the establishment of a school farm to instruct pupils in the science and practice of agriculture. Two hundred acres of land for such a purpose could be purchased by a county, or township agricultural society or by a municipal council.

In 1873 the government purchased five hundred and fifty acres of land about one mile from Guelph to be used for a school of agriculture and an experimental station.¹⁰⁷ The School of Agriculture was opened for students in May, 1874.¹⁰⁸ Six years passed however, before the School was given any legal status through legislation.

On March 5, 1880 an act¹⁰⁹ was passed which changed the name to Ontario Agricultural College and Experimental Farm. Education was to be both theoretical and practical. The purpose of the Experimental Farm was to provide facilities for research in agriculture, horticulture and arboriculture. The procedures used in the research with the results obtained were to be published periodically. The College was affiliated with the University of Toronto.

¹⁰⁹ Act of 43 Vict., c. 33.

An annual report on the progress of both the College and Farm was to be submitted to the Legislative Assembly. This report must contain: (a) list of faculty; (b) list of students; (c) copy of all examination papers; (d) report on the various departments of the Farm; (e) an account of the experiments; (f) income and expenditure; (g) rules and regulations made by the Lieutenant Governor in Council on standards of admission, courses of study, etc.; and (h) a comparative statement showing the year to year progress of the College and Farm

The first report to be printed was for the period May to December 1874. It was, however, not considered an annual report as the report issued for 1875 was named the first annual report. Reports were also presented by the professors of the various departments. These also were printed.

In 1880 a society known as the Agricultural and Experimental Union was organized by the officers and students of the College for the dissemination of information on agriculture and related activities. The report of the first meeting was published by the Department of Agriculture. No further reports were published until the sixth meeting held in 1885. The report for 1892 was erroneously called the fourteenth instead of the thirteenth annual meeting. This error was not corrected.

In addition to his regular report the Professor of Agriculture issued a report on the herds and flocks of Ontario for the years 1883 and 1884. These were printed.

For the years 1886 and 1888 the report of the Professor of Dairying was published in two editions: one, printed with the annual report of the College as Report of the Professor of Dairying; second, Annual report of the Professor of Dairying. Special edition. No report in either edition was located for 1887 which was probably due to the very destructive fire that year.

In 1886 a bulletin was established which, according to A. Blue, deputy minister of agriculture, was to make available to the agricultural community the results of investigations carried on at the Agricultural College and Experimental Farm.¹¹⁰ No copies of Bulletin number one or number eighteen were located.

A Board of Control of representatives of the Ontario Agricultural College and Experimental Farm, and the Fruit Growers' Association was established in 1893 to establish fruit experiment stations. The Department of Agriculture published the first annual report of the Fruit Experiment Stations in 1894.

A number of special reports, mainly returns requested by the Legislative Assembly, were published between 1872 and 1900.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION OF ONTARIO

The Poultry Association of Ontario was incorporated on March 11, 1879¹¹¹ for the purpose of encouraging the breeding of poultry, and the dissemination of information relating to breeding, rearing, management, and improvement of poultry in the Province.

The Association was to hold an annual meeting at the same time and place as the annual Exhibition. The Secretary was required to submit an annual report of the proceedings of the Association to the Commissioner of Agriculture within forty days of the annual meeting. The first report was published by the Department of Agriculture in 1881 on the work of the year 1879/80. No reports were located for the years 1884-1887. The reports were not numbered until 1890 when the report for that year was numbered the seventeenth. If this numbering is correct it means the Association was in existence for at least five years before it was incorporated. A special report on poultry had been published with the Annual reports of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts for 1872.

DEPARTMENT OF CROWN LANDS

Under the terms of the British North America Act¹¹² the Lieutenant Governor was required to appoint as one of the executive officers a commissioner of crown lands. This was not a new office since in an act¹¹³ passed on April 23, 1860 by the government of the Province of Canada, respecting "the sale and management of public lands", provision was made for a department of crown lands under the direction of a commissioner. The duties of the Commissioner were to issue a license of occupation to intending settlers, keep a register of assignments of claims to land, issue patents, and present an annual report to Parliament of the proceedings, transactions, and affairs of the Department.

Since, under the British North America Act¹¹⁴ all laws in force in the Province of Canada, at the time of the Union, were to continue, unless repealed, abolished, or altered by a provincial legislature, or by this Act, the Act of 1860 continued. When the Statutes of Ontario were revised in 1877¹¹⁵ they brought into force the Province of Canada Act of 1860, respecting Crown Lands, with only minor changes.

Two acts, however, were passed by the provincial Legislature which dealt with the cost of land. In 1871 when the Legislature discovered that payment, on certain crown, clergy and grammar school lands, was in arrears due to too high a price being asked, an act¹¹⁶ was passed by which the Lieutenant Governor in Council was given authority to reduce the price of land sold before July 1, 1867, provided that such land had been examined by one or more inspectors who recommended a reduction. On March 2, 1872 a further act¹¹⁷ was passed which added common school lands to those already under investigation. Several returns respecting these investigations were printed.

Mining lands were also the responsibility of the Commissioner. In an act¹¹⁸ passed on March 4, 1868 respecting gold and silver mines the Lieutenant Governor in Council was empowered to appoint an inspector of each mining division who was responsible to the Commissioner of Crown Lands. Several further acts were passed over the next twenty-three years. However, no great interest in mining had developed. On May 4, 1891 when a further act¹¹⁹ was passed, a Bureau of Mines, under a director, was established to promote mining interests. The Director was responsible to the Commissioner.

While the Commissioner was responsible for woods and forests and included a report on them each year in his annual report, in 1883, when the government wanted more information on reforestation, wood manufacturers, and the timber industry, they appointed a clerk of forestry responsible to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts. In 1895 after several years when no information was available, a Bureau of Forestry was established under the direction of the Clerk of Forestry, now responsible to the Commissioner of Crown Lands. Thus, once more all matters respecting forestry were under the one department.

Immigration was another area of concern to the government. Under the British North America Act¹²⁰ immigration was linked with agriculture. Thus immigration was placed under the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts in 1868. When the problem of suitable land, not only for immigrants but for persons already in the Province, for settlement developed in the 1890's a Bureau of Colonization was established under a director in 1900, responsible to the Commissioner of Crown Lands. Thus immigration was linked to land use.¹²¹

Two other branches for which the Commissioner was responsible for a short period of time were: (1) the Corporations Registrar, from 1897 to 1899; (2) the Inspector of Insurance and Registrar of Friendly Societies, from 1896 to 1899. Both officials transferred to the Attorney General's Department in 1899.

Under the Province of Canada the Commissioner of Crown Lands had presented an annual report for the calendar year. He continued this policy and thus the report for 1867 included the activities for the last six months of the Province of Canada and for the first six months of the province of Ontario.

A number of consolidations of statutes, including orders and regulations, were printed.

Nearly every year the Legislative Assembly requested a number of returns respecting the activities of the Department. Reports on the suitability of public lands for settlement were commissioned by the Department as well as agreements with lumbering companies. Those which were printed have been arranged in chronological order.

BUREAU OF COLONIZATION

Under the British North America Act¹²² both the Parliament of Canada and the provincial legislatures could pass legislation respecting the admittance of immigrants into a province. A provincial legislature, however, could not pass any legislation on immigration repugnant to the Parliament of Canada.

As Ontario was an agricultural province, and the demand for immigrant farm labour exceeded the supply, responsibility for immigration was placed with the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works. In his annual report¹²³ on immigration for 1873 the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works reported that while immigration had not decreased, it was becoming more difficult to obtain "a good class of immigrants from the British Isles". As a result of this report, on April 6, 1874, by an order in council, the Department of Immigration was established under a commissioner.¹²⁴ This did not mean that a new executive officer would sit as a member of the Executive Council but rather that one of the executive officers would be the Commissioner of Immigration. The Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts served as Commissioner of Immigration from 1874 to 1876.

On November 4, 1874 a federal-provincial conference was held in Ottawa to bring the provincial schemes for immigration into harmony with the federal scheme. In a memorandum issued, the control and direction of all matters connected with the promotion of emigrants from the United Kingdom and Europe was vested in the Minister of Agriculture in Ottawa.¹²⁵ The provinces now would have sub-agents to look after their interests.

In 1877 the Secretary and Registrar of the Province became the Commissioner of Immigration, a post he held until 1888 when the Minister of Agriculture (formerly Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts) once more became the Commissioner of Immigration. The post of Commissioner of Immigration was abolished in 1900, when in order to facilitate the securing of land by desirable immigrants as well as by those persons already in the Province, a Bureau of Colonization under a director was established. The Bureau was placed under the Department of Crown Lands, not the Department of Agriculture.¹²⁶

The first annual report on immigration was issued for 1869 by the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works. From 1874 to 1899 the Commissioner of Immigration presented an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor to be laid before the Legislative Assembly. The Director of Colonization presented his first report to the Commissioner of Crown Lands for 1900.

A number of special reports were published, many of which promoted the advantages of Ontario as a Province in which to settle. These reports have been listed in this section regardless of which minister was responsible for immigration. A number of reports were published for distribution abroad only. None of these were located and therefore have not been listed.

BUREAU OF FORESTRY

From July 1, 1867 to 1899 a report on woods and forests was published as part of the Report of the Commissioner of Crown Lands of the province of Ontario. In 1878 when a Woods and Forests Branch was established this report was issued as a Branch report. In general these reports dealt with timber revenues. A number of special reports respecting timber also were published.

By 1883 the government needed more information on reforestation, wood manufactures, the timber industry, the amount of firewood available, etc. As a result a clerk of forestry, responsible to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts was appointed. The Clerk was required to compile an annual report on the above topics. At the time of the Clerk's death in 1891 he had compiled seven reports. No new appointment was made until 1895¹²⁷ when a Bureau of Forestry was established in the Department of Crown Lands under direction of the Clerk of Forestry.¹²⁸ In 1900 the title Clerk of Forestry was changed to Director.

An annual report once more was issued by the Clerk of Forestry. However, the Director transmitted one report which covered the activities for both 1900 and 1901 to the Commissioner of Crown Lands on January 24, 1902.

A number of special reports were printed which have been arranged in chronological order.

BUREAU OF MINES

On March 4, 1868 an act¹²⁹ was passed respecting gold and silver mines. The Lieutenant Governor in Council was empowered to declare any tract of land, by an order in council, a mining division; and appoint an inspector for the mining division who would be responsible to the Commissioner of Crown Lands. An inspector had jurisdiction as the justice of the peace with power to settle disputes arising over boundaries, use of water, access to water, etc.; grant licenses for exploration; and inspect the books of all licensed mine owners. The Act did not require any annual report on mines.

On January 23, 1869 "The General Mining Act"¹³⁰ was passed which repealed the Act respecting the gold and silver mines. While many changes were made under this Act the duties of the Lieutenant Governor in Council as well as those of an inspector of a mining division virtually remained unchanged. The Act came into force on April 1, 1869.

While neither act required any annual report on mining, the Commissioner of Crown Lands included at least a statement in his annual report on mines and minerals.

¹²⁹ Act of 31 Vict., c. 19.

¹³⁰ Act of 32 Vict., c. 34.

A further act¹³¹ was passed on April 7, 1890 to take effect July 1, respecting mining regulations. This Act provided for an inspector of mines under the Minister of Agriculture. The inspectors of divisions now were required to submit an annual report to the Minister of Agriculture for transmittal to the Legislative Assembly on the employment of women, young persons and children, accidents, payment of wages; ventilation, use of gunpowder, etc. The Inspector of Mines appointed in April 1890 presented only one report to the Minister of Agriculture, which has been listed in this section.

The Minister was empowered to direct an inspector to make a special report with respect to any accident. Such reports also were to be made public.

On May 4, 1891 when the General Mining Act of 1869 was amended¹³² a Bureau of Mines, to aid in promoting the mining interests of the Province, was established in connection with the Department of Crown Lands. The Lieutenant Governor in Council was to appoint the Director of the Bureau of Mines whose salary would be voted by the Legislature. All regulations made under the Act by the Lieutenant Governor in Council were to be laid before the Legislative Assembly. The Director had all the powers, rights and authority throughout the Province which had been assigned to the division inspectors or local agents. He was to operate within the framework of the regulations.

The following year on April 14, "The Mines Act" was passed¹³³. This Act incorporated, amended, and enlarged upon the requirements laid down in the Acts of 1890 and 1891. It re-stated the sections dealing with the Bureau, Director, and inspectors of mining divisions. Any inspector appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council now was to be an officer of the Bureau. All regulations made by the Lieutenant Governor in Council were to be laid before the Legislative Assembly. The owner or agent of every mine was required to present an annual report to the Bureau on the number of persons employed, age of persons, average rate of wages of each class of worker, etc. However, the Bureau was not required either to submit these statements to the Legislative Assembly or have them published. Every inspector also was required to make an annual report of his proceedings to the Director of Mines who was required to present it to the Legislative Assembly.

The first report on the Bureau of Mines was for the year 1891. Each year thereafter, a report was published. From 1891 to 1896 in addition to the report of the Director, papers on various mining topics were included. In 1898 and 1899 several parts were published. Part 1 of the seventh annual report for 1898 was really the report of activities for 1897.

In 1896 the Bureau began to publish a bulletin. While no index of reports was published before 1900 two indexes of reports and one of geological maps were published between 1909 and 1937. Since they include the index to the reports and maps issued between 1891 and 1900, they have been listed.

Several editions of statutes were published under the authority of the Commissioner of Crown Lands. They have been listed in chronological order.

The regulations approved by the Lieutenant Governor as well as a number of reports on various aspects of mining have been listed in chronological order under special publications.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

Under the British North America Act¹³⁴ the Lieutenant Governor was required to appoint as one of the executive officers a commissioner of agriculture and public works.

On January 23, 1869 an act¹³⁵ was passed whereby the Department of Public Works for Ontario was established separate from agriculture. However, for the time being the one executive officer was to preside over both departments. When dealing with matters respecting public works the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works was to use the title Commissioner of Public Works.

The Commissioner was required to direct the construction, maintenance and repair of all public works in progress, or constructed or maintained at the expense of the Province; and submit an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor on all works under the control of the Department showing the state of each work, the amounts received, and expended on each work. This report was to be laid before the Legislature within twenty-one days of the opening of each session.

The Act also placed the drainage of lands under the jurisdiction of the Commissioner. He was to employ competent engineers and surveyors who would examine and survey the levels of any swamp or bog land, or land occasionally or permanently flooded with water, report on the best means of draining or preventing the flooding of such land, estimate the cost of the same, report on the quantity and quality of land proposed to be drained, or saved from flooding with an estimate of the improved value of such land.

When a Railway Fund was established in 1871¹³⁶ to aid in the building of railways the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works was required to present a report on the work before payment would be authorized by the Lieutenant Governor

On March 24, 1874 a further act¹³⁷ was passed whereby public works was placed under an executive officer separate from agriculture. This officer retained the title Commissioner of Public Works.

On March 5, 1880 an act¹³⁸ was passed whereby new buildings were to be constructed to house the Legislature and public departments. This project was placed under the jurisdiction of the Commissioner.

On March 25, 1884 the Ontario Factories Act¹³⁹ was passed. However, it was not until November 29, 1887 that the regulations for enforcing the Act were issued, which made factory inspection a branch of the Department of Public Works. Under a further act¹⁴⁰ passed March 23, 1888 the Factories Inspection Branch was transferred to the Department of Agriculture.

When a Commissioner of Highways replaced the Provincial Instructor in Road-making in 1900 he was placed under the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Public Works, thus transferring highways from agriculture.

Two other branches of government were placed in the Department of Public Works on April 30, 1900: (1) The Bureau of Labour established by an act¹⁴¹, and (2) The Department of Fisheries, which had been established when the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners had been dissolved.¹⁴²

The Commissioner issued his first annual report covering activities for the year 1868. Several statutes were printed. A number of special reports also were printed.

BUREAU OF LABOUR

An act¹⁴³ was passed on April 30, 1900 by which the Bureau of Labour was established with the object "to collect, assort and systematise, and publish information and statistics relating to employment, wages and hours of labour throughout the Province, — cooperation, strikes or other labour difficulties, trades unions, labour organizations, the relations between labour and capital and other subjects of interest to workingmen, with such information relating to the commercial, industrial and sanitary condition of workingmen, and the permanent prosperity of the industries of the Province". The Bureau, presided over by a secretary appointed by the Lieutenant Governor, was attached to the Department of Public Works.

The Act did not require any annual report. The Secretary, however, issued an annual report covering the year 1900. In 1898 a special report on labour laws was published. It has been included in this section even though the Bureau was not in existence at that time.

COMMISSIONER OF HIGHWAYS

In response to an invitation issued by the authority of the Canadian Institute, Toronto, a meeting was held on February 9, 1894 on the subject of public roads.¹⁴⁴ A second convention was held on February 7 & 8, 1895. The reports of these meetings were published by the Minister of Agriculture under the authority of the Legislative Assembly. The Department also published three special bulletins for the Association, two on road-making, and the third Common country roads. These have been listed with the special publications.

By an order in council dated April 15, 1896 a Provincial Instructor in Road-making was appointed and attached to the Department of Agriculture.¹⁴⁵ The Provincial Instructor presented annual reports for the years 1896 to 1899 to the Minister of Agriculture.

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES

Under the British North America Act¹⁴⁶ both seacoast and inland fisheries were made the responsibility of the Parliament of Canada. When this decision was contested by the government of the province of Ontario, the Queen's Privy Council ruled that the fish found in rivers and lakes of provincial territory were the property of the Province and thus the provincial legislatures could pass certain laws dealing with fisheries.¹⁴⁷

On March 30, 1885 the Ontario Fisheries Act¹⁴⁸, to be administered by the Commissioner of Crown Lands, was passed. Fish overseers were to be appointed who would be responsible for enforcing the rules and regulations laid down by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. These overseers were required to present an annual report to the Legislative Assembly only if directed to do so by the Lieutenant Governor.

No annual reports were presented to the Legislative Assembly under this Act. However, the Commissioner of Crown Lands included in his report the reports of the overseers for the years 1887 to 1889.

On April 14, 1892 a further act¹⁴⁹ was passed whereby the responsibility for both fish and game was assigned to a board to be known as the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners. This Board existed until 1900 when on April 30 under a further act¹⁵⁰ fisheries were separated from game. Fisheries now were to be placed directly under a member of the Executive Council who would be named by an order in council. Annual or other reports were to be made by the fishery overseers whenever required by the executive officer responsible for fisheries. The Commissioner of Public Works became the executive officer responsible.

In anticipation of the legislation passed in 1900 the Fisheries Branch of the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners had named their report for 1899 the First annual report of the Fisheries Branch. The report for 1900 was named the Second annual report of the Department of Fisheries.

One special report dealing with provincial fisheries jurisdiction was printed.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

Under the British North America Act¹⁵² the provincial legislatures were granted the exclusive right to make laws respecting education. However, in fact, the legislatures did not have the exclusive rights to pass legislation in four areas, three of which concerned Ontario. No legislation could be passed which might prejudicially affect: (1) denominational schools; and (2) the rights or privileges of Protestant, or Roman Catholic minorities in so far as it concerned education. The third area concerned provincial legislation which should have been passed but was not. In all three areas, the Parliament of Canada had the right to pass remedial legislation, which took precedence. The Act, however, did not require that education be represented by an executive officer who would sit on the Executive Council, or indeed, that the Chief Superintendent of Schools be an elected member to the Legislative Assembly. Indeed, while the Chief Superintendent of Schools was appointed by the Lieutenant Governor, he reported to the Provincial Secretary.

The Province of Canada had passed an act¹⁵³ on July 24, 1850 whereby a Council of Public Instruction of nine members, one of which was the Chief Superintendent of Schools, was established. The Council was responsible for the rules and regulations governing the common, model, and normal schools. The Council with the Education Office, the Map and School Apparatus Depository, and the Public Library Depository made up the four branches of the Department of Public Instruction for Upper Canada. On June 14, 1853 by a further act¹⁵⁴ the Council also became responsible for the rules and regulations governing the grammar schools.

The Council, through the Chief Superintendent of Schools, was required to submit annually to the Governor a true account of the receipts and expenditure of all moneys granted for the establishment and support of the normal school. This report was to be laid before both houses of Parliament.

The Chief Superintendent of Schools, appointed by the Governor, was responsible for carrying out the rules and regulations laid down by Council; submitting an annual report to the Governor on the state of the normal, model, grammar, and common schools, showing the amount of money spent in connection with each, from what sources derived; making suggestions for improving the common schools, their laws, and generally for promoting education.

When the Chief Superintendent of Schools presented his annual report for 1867 he continued the above requirements, simply changing the geographical part of the title from Upper Canada to Ontario. His report was addressed to the Provincial Secretary and not to the Lieutenant Governor.

Between 1867 and 1872 several acts were passed respecting one or other types of schools. On March 2, 1872, however, an act¹⁵⁵ was passed by which the Lieutenant Governor in Council was empowered to abrogate, suspend or modify any rules, regulations, instructions or recommendations which might be issued by either the Council of Public Instruction, or the Chief Superintendent of Schools. This Act was to remain in force until the end of the next session of the Legislature. On March 29, 1873 a further act¹⁵⁶ was passed which extended the above provision until the end of that session.

¹⁵² Imperial Act of 30 and 31 Vict., c.3, s. 93.

¹⁵³ Canada (Province) Act of 13 and 14 Vict., c. 48.

¹⁵⁴ Canada (Province) Act of 16 Vict., c. 186.

¹⁵⁵ Act of 35 Vict., c. 30.

¹⁵⁶ Act of 36 Vict., c. 28.

On March 24, 1874 an act¹⁵⁷ was passed which amended and consolidated the acts relating to the Council of Public Instruction, the normal schools, collegiate institutes, and high schools. The Council of Public Instruction was enlarged to include eight members appointed by the Lieutenant Governor; one member elected by the Council of University College; one elected by each of the colleges with university powers (actually five members); plus three other elected members, namely, one by the masters and teachers of high schools and collegiate institutes, one by the inspectors of public schools, and one by the teachers of public and separate schools. The last three named could not be employed as a master, inspector, or teacher. The Chief Superintendent of Schools was ex officio.

The powers and duties of the Council, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant Governor, were to: prepare and prescribe a list of text-books, programmes of study, rules and regulations for high schools, and collegiate institutes; prescribe regulations for examinations for admission to high schools and collegiate institutes; appoint inspectors of high schools; make regulations for normal, and model schools; designate the number and locality of meteorological stations which were desirable in connection with high schools; recommend text, and library books; and submit an annual report, through the Chief Superintendent of Education, to the Lieutenant Governor, to be presented to the Legislative Assembly, giving a true account of the receipts and expenditure of all monies granted for the establishment and support of normal schools. The Council also was required to publish a report of their proceedings in the Journal of education.

The Chief Superintendent of Schools, now named the Chief Superintendent of Education, still was appointed by the Lieutenant Governor and subject to his directions, which would be communicated by one of the executive officers of the government. This executive officer continued to be the Provincial Secretary. The Chief Superintendent was responsible for: apportioning grants, furnishing acts, rules and regulations, and reporting to the Lieutenant Governor on the establishment, or discontinuance of high schools; establishing school libraries, apportioning grants for libraries and prizes, providing maps and apparatus, and recommending text-books for high and public schools; the general superintendence of normal schools including the issuance of certificates of qualifications to teachers; the publication periodically of a catalogue of all books, sanctioned by the Council of Public Instruction, for libraries and for prizes in the collegiate institutes, high and public schools; and presenting annually to the Lieutenant Governor a report on the actual state of normal, model, high and public schools, and collegiate institutes. This report was also to show the amount of money spent on each class, and from what sources received. The Chief Superintendent was also to make suggestions for improving the schools, school laws, and education generally.

The Chief Superintendent of Education also became responsible on March 4, 1874 for apportioning grants to any industrial schools which might be established for the training, lodging, clothing, and feeding of children under the age of fourteen who had no home and who had been brought before a police magistrate.¹⁵⁸

In his annual report for 1875¹⁵⁹ the Chief Superintendent stated that for several years he had urged that educational matters should become the direct responsibility of a member of the Executive Council, thus putting education under an elected member of the Legislative Assembly. He further urged, that in order to present a true picture of the state of education in the Province, all educational institutions should report to the Lieutenant Governor, and their reports should be included in his annual report. The

Chief Superintendent divided these institutions into two categories: those which were provincially supported and were required to present an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor (University of Toronto, University College, and Upper Canada College); and those which were not provincially supported and were not required to present any annual report to the government (University of Victoria College, Cobourg; University and Queen's College, Kingston; University of Trinity College, Toronto; Albert University, Belleville; and Ottawa College).¹⁶⁰

On February 10, 1876 a further act¹⁶¹ was passed by which the functions of the Council of Public Instruction were suspended and all the duties and powers were transferred to the Education Department. The Department was to be presided over by a Minister of Education, who was to be an executive officer holding no other office on the Executive Council.

On March 11, 1879 a further act¹⁶² was passed by which a public school board in any city could designate one or more public schools to be a model school for the preliminary training of public school teachers subject to the regulations of the Education Department. This Act carried the same provision respecting separate schools. While Roman Catholic separate schools had been included in the Minister's annual report, and in his statement of transmittal, because of this Act, separate schools now appeared in the title of his report.

On March 5, 1880 in an act¹⁶³ passed to amend the Agriculture and Arts Act the Association of Mechanics' Institutes of Ontario, mechanics' institutes, the Ontario Society of Artists and schools of art and design were transferred from the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts to the Minister of Education. The Minister was to assume all the powers and duties with respect to these institutions which had been vested in the Commissioner.

In an act¹⁶⁴ passed on April 23, 1887 the Education Department was instructed to make regulations for the organization of schools for children between three and five years of age, to be known as kindergarten schools; and to provide for the training and licensing of teachers for such schools. The cost for such schools was to come out of the Legislative Assembly appropriation to public schools.

On May 4, 1891 in an act¹⁶⁵ to consolidate and revise the laws respecting the Education Department, a list of classes of schools for which the Department was responsible was issued: (1) Kindergarten schools for pupils between four and seven (both for admission and leaving, the age had been raised from that laid down in the 1887 Act); (2) Public schools for pupils between five and twenty-one; (3) Night schools for pupils over fourteen years of age unable to attend school during the usual hours; (4) High schools and collegiate institutes for such pupils as pass the prescribed entrance examinations; (5) Art schools for instruction in mechanical, industrial and constructive drawing and other branches of technical education; (6) County model schools for the training of candidates for teachers' third-class certificates; (7) Normal schools for the training of candidates for teachers' second-class certificates; (8) Schools of pedagogy for the training of candidates for teachers' first-class certificates and for the training of teachers of high schools and collegiate institutes; (9) Teachers' institutes for the reading of papers and the general discussion of educational topics; (10)

Mechanics' institutes for the establishment of libraries; and (11) Industrial schools for the instruction in industrial pursuits with a special view to the moral reformation of children whose habits render removal from their homes necessary. While the Act did not include separate schools in this list, the Minister and Department still were responsible for separate schools. This Act required the Minister of Education to report annually upon all the schools and institutes listed above.

An act¹⁶⁶ to further consolidate and revise the laws respecting the Education Department was passed on April 7, 1896. Under this Act the School of Pedagogy became the Ontario Normal College and Mechanics' institutes were listed as public libraries. The Lieutenant Governor was required to establish an educational council of ten persons appointed by him plus the President of the University of Toronto. This Council, subject to the regulations of the Education Department, was required to conduct the departmental examinations, and report the results of all examinations to the Minister of Education.

By another act¹⁶⁷ passed on the same day, industrial schools were transferred to the Provincial Secretary, or any other minister who might be put in charge of such schools. However, the Minister of Education continued to present the report on industrial schools.

On April 13, 1897 in an act¹⁶⁸ to make certain amendments to the Statute Law the membership of the Educational Council was increased to twelve, all appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. The Senate of the University of Toronto could nominate six of the twelve members so appointed.

The Minister of Education published an annual report from 1867. All reports contained a number of appendices, except those for the years 1880 and 1881 to 1884 when these reports were divided into four parts. Information, generally found in one of the appendices, was included in one of the parts. These appendices have been listed separately in this study. Those appendices which concern the University of Toronto, University College and the School of Practical Science have been listed in Chapter II since these institutions came directly under the jurisdiction of the Lieutenant Governor and since all reports respecting these institutions were not published by the Minister of Education.

One periodical, Journal of education started in January 1848, continued to be published by the Department until July 1877. Each year the Department issued a number of circulars, many of which contained instructions respecting various aspects of education. These have been arranged by circular number with those unnumbered listed first.

From time to time the Department published consolidations of the statutes, to which, generally, were added the rules and regulations. These also have been arranged in chronological order.

More special reports respecting education were published than for any other aspect of government. These also have been arranged in chronological order.

PROVINCIAL ARCHAEOLOGICAL MUSEUM

The Canadian Institute, established in Toronto in 1849, was incorporated on November 4, 1851. It received its first grant from the government in 1852.¹⁶⁹ From 1880 to 1900 the Minister of Education published an annual report of the activities of the Institute as part of his report on technical education. In addition an annual report containing archaeological data was published by the Minister, for the Institute, between 1886/87 and 1893/94 as a separate appendix. These reports were printed also in the Sessional Papers. The reports from 1891 to 1893/94 contained only archaeological data. The sixth report published for the year 1892/93 was incorrectly numbered the fifth. The report for 1893/94 was numbered the seventh, thus correcting the error in numbering. From 1894/95 the annual report on archaeological data was published by the Minister as an archaeological report of the Provincial Archaeological Museum. These reports continued to be printed as a separate appendix to the report of the Minister and in the Sessional Papers.

Several special reports were published. These have been arranged in alphabetical order.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

The term technical education was used by the Minister of Education as a covering title to bring together the reports of various associations for which he became responsible in 1880: the Association of Mechanics' Institutes of Ontario; Mechanics' institutes; the Ontario Society of Artists; schools of art and design¹⁷⁰; and in 1882, free libraries.¹⁷¹ The collective annual reports have been listed below. The Education Department also issued the acts and regulations respecting these organizations which have been listed below.

Special reports which deal with only one organization have been listed with the individual organizations. However one special report was printed on technical education.

Art Schools

In October 1876 the Ontario School of Art was opened. The first classes in elementary drawing were organized at the same time. In a report presented to the Legislative Assembly in February 1878 the Council of the Ontario School of Art, which was the only school of its kind in Canada, made the following recommendations: (1) The school be included in the educational system of the Province; (2) The school be governed by a council of twenty members, one to be the Minister of Education, six to be chosen from among the members of the Ontario Society of Artists and thirteen chosen by the Lieutenant Governor who would actually appoint all members; and (3) That branch schools should be established in other cities and towns in the Province.¹⁷²

In an act¹⁷³ passed on March 5, 1880 respecting agriculture and arts, the schools of art and design along with the mechanics' institutes, Association of Mechanics' Institutes and Ontario Society of Artists were transferred from under the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts to the Minister of Education.

In a further act¹⁷⁴ passed on March 25, 1886 respecting mechanics' institutes and art schools, provision was made for the establishment of art schools under the jurisdiction of the Education Department. This Act did not require an annual report. However, the Minister of Education from 1886 did include a report on art schools as part of his report on technical education.

One special report on the Ontario School of Art was printed in the Sessional Papers.

Mechanics' Institutes

The first mechanics' institute was incorporated on March 29, 1845 in Montreal.¹⁷⁵ Its purpose was to form a library and reading room, and organize a system of instruction by means of lectures for the benefit of the members of the association. The Corporation was required to present under oath, a true statement of its receipts and expenditures, and a statement of the real and personal estate to each branch of the Provincial Legislature within fifteen days of the opening of each session. Two years later a similar act¹⁷⁶ was passed permitting the city of Toronto to establish a mechanics' institute. A similar report was required from this institute.

In order to encourage the establishment of library associations and mechanics' institutes in the Province of Canada a general act of incorporation¹⁷⁷ was passed on August 30, 1851, thus eliminating the necessity to pass an individual act for each association. Under this Act Parliament did not require an annual report on the activities of either library associations or mechanics' institutes. The Act did, however, require that a copy of the constitution and by-laws of each organization be filed with the County Registrar.

By 1868 there were approximately fifty mechanics' institutes in existence in Ontario.¹⁷⁸ Under the Act¹⁷⁹ for "the encouragement of agriculture, horticulture, arts and manufactures" passed on March 4, 1868 the Association of Mechanics' Institutes of Ontario was established. The local institutes were associate members. The Association was required to present, to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts within fourteen days of holding the annual meeting, an annual report of the proceedings of the Association. The annual meeting was to be held at the same place and at the same time as the exhibition of the Agricultural and Arts Association. Each mechanics' institute also was required to present to the Commissioner a certified copy of its annual report.

¹⁷⁹ Act of 31 Vict., c. 29.

Under a new act¹⁸⁰ passed on March 2, 1877 the Inspector of Schools was required annually to inspect the institutes, audit the financial affairs before the first day of July, and to submit to the Commissioner of Agriculture a report on the condition and standing of each institute. On March 5, 1880 the Association of Mechanics' Institutes and the mechanics' institutes along with the Ontario Society of Artists and the schools of art and design were transferred from the supervision of the Commissioner of Agriculture to the Minister of Education.¹⁸¹ The powers and duties which had been conferred on the Commissioner in connection with the association, institutes, society and schools now were vested in the Minister of Education.

On March 25, 1886 a further act¹⁸² was passed whereby the Association of Mechanics' Institutes of Ontario was to be dissolved on September 30, 1886. All monies belonging to the Association were to be handed over to the Provincial Treasurer. The Director of each individual mechanics' institute was now required to report directly to the Education Department on or before May first. The Education Department was required to submit, every regulation or order in council drawn up under the authority of this Act, to the Legislative Assembly for the final approval, or rejection.

On April 16, 1895 "an Act¹⁸³ to amend and consolidate the acts respecting Free Libraries and Mechanics' Institutes" was passed which changed the name mechanics' institutes to public library.

From 1869-1879 an annual report was presented to the Legislative Assembly by the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts. From 1880-1896, when mechanics' institutes became public libraries, the report was presented to the Legislative Assembly by the Minister of Education as part of his report on technical education.

Several special reports were published respecting mechanics' institutes.

Ontario Society of Artists

When the Legislature of Ontario held its first session in 1867/68 it passed legislation for "the encouragement of agriculture, horticulture, arts and manufactures".¹⁸⁴ The Act recognized certain organizations, already established, and provided for others, which would promote these areas of concern. In 1872 the Ontario Society of Artists was founded with the following objects: (1) To build a suitable gallery in a central position for exhibiting works of art; (2) The acquisition of good works for reference and instruction; and (3) To found a school of art and design.¹⁸⁵

It was not, however, until March 2, 1877 when the Agriculture and Arts Act¹⁸⁶ was amended that the society was incorporated and placed under the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts. Like other societies under this jurisdiction, the Ontario Society of Artists was required to present to the Commissioner within forty days of holding of the annual meeting an annual report of proceedings, a statement of receipts and expenditures, a list of elected officers, and a statement of progress of art in the Province.

On March 5, 1880 under a further act¹⁸⁷ respecting agriculture and the arts, the branches of the Department concerned with the arts were transferred, with all the powers and duties, from the Department of the Commissioner of Agriculture to the Education Department.

On March 25, 1886 an act¹⁸⁸ respecting mechanics' institutes and art schools, which included the Society, was passed whereby all regulations or orders in council issued under the Act had to be laid before the Legislative Assembly and approved by them before being enforced.

No report was issued by the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts respecting the Society.

From 1880 an annual report on the Society was included with the other reports on technical education. These were published as an appendix to the Report of the Minister of Education. A two volume Catalogue of paintings was published by the Society.

Public Libraries

On March 10, 1882 an act¹⁸⁹ was passed whereby a free library could be established in any city, town, or village in Ontario provided certain conditions were met. The general management, regulations, and control of any library so established, was vested in a board of management composed of the mayor of the city, or town, or the reeve of the village; three other persons appointed by the Council of the city, town, or village; three persons appointed by the public school board, or board of education of the municipality; and two by the trustees of the separate school if one existed

The Act did not require that an annual report be presented to the government. However, from 1885 an annual report was published by the Minister of Education as part of his report on technical education.

On April 16, 1895 an act¹⁹⁰ to amend and consolidate the acts respecting free libraries and mechanics' institutes was passed. Both free libraries and mechanics' institutes were to be renamed public libraries. The money which had been appropriated by the Legislature for mechanics' institutes now was to be distributed to public libraries under regulations supervised by the Education Department. All such regulations or orders in council made under this Act had to be presented to the Legislative Assembly for approval before being enforced.

This Act did not require any annual report. However, the Minister of Education continued to include a report on public libraries as part of his report on technical education.

UPPER CANADA COLLEGE

On April 22, 1853 the government of the Province of Canada passed an act¹⁹¹ whereby the Corporation of "Principals, Masters and Scholars of Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School" was dissolved. This institution now was placed under the direct jurisdiction of the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and members of the Senate of the University of Toronto. The Governor was Visitor to the College and School.

Under this Act the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and members of the Senate were empowered to draw up statutes for the good government, conduct and regulations, respecting the College and School; Principal, masters, pupils, officers and servants; and the fees paid by the students. The Principal was responsible for the regulations governing the conduct and discipline of masters, pupils, officers and servants, subject to the approval of the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and members of Senate.

A certified copy of all statutes and regulations must be submitted to the Provincial Secretary within ten days, for transmittal to the Visitor for his approval. No statute came into force until approved by the Visitor.

¹⁸⁹ Act of 45 Vict., c.22.

¹⁹⁰ Act of 58 Vict., c. 45.

¹⁹¹ Canada (Province) Act of 16 Vict., c. 89.

The Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and members of Senate were required to present an annual report to the Governor on the general state, progress, and prospects of the College and School. Copies of this report were to be laid before both Houses of Parliament.

Under the Act all property belonging to the University, Upper Canada College, and Royal Grammar School now was vested in the Crown, to be administered under order of the Governor in Council by an officer known as the Bursar of the University and Colleges of Toronto. The Bursar was required to make an annual report to the Governor.

When the Parliament of the Province of Canada ceased to exist in 1867, this Act continued in force under the Legislature of the newly created province of Ontario until April 23, 1887, when the Legislature of Ontario passed an act¹⁹² by which Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School were incorporated under the name of Upper Canada College. The Lieutenant Governor remained as Visitor. The College was placed under a Board of Trustees of five members, appointed by the Lieutenant Governor.

The Board of Trustees was responsible for making regulations for holding written examinations, the admission of pupils to the College, their promotion, tuition fees, care of College property, the moral training of pupils, and promoting the efficiency of the College. The Principal could make regulations for the direction of the masters, officers and servants in regard to their respective duties, the discipline and instruction of the pupils. These regulations were subject to the approval of the Board of Trustees. A certified copy of all regulations, however, regardless of origin, had to be transmitted within ten days to the Minister of Education who had to seek the approval of the Visitor before the regulation could become effective.

The Principal was required to submit an annual report to the Minister of Education on or before January 15, on annual attendance of pupils, number in each class, form, or subject, number admitted or promoted each term, number retiring with the reason for leaving, and, generally, any other information required by the Minister of Education.

The Lieutenant Governor in Council made the regulations for retirement and superannuation of teachers. These regulations must be laid before the Legislative Assembly immediately if the Legislature was in session or within seven days of the opening of the next session. If the Legislative Assembly disapproved of any regulation or any part of the regulation it was not effective.

Copies of annual reports and of the regulations of the Trustees or Principal which had been approved by the Visitor must be laid before the Legislative Assembly at the next session.

By a further act¹⁹³ passed on May 5, 1894 the Board of Trustees was enlarged to nine members, five of whom still were appointed by the Lieutenant Governor. The other four were elected by the Upper Canada College Old Boys' Association under a by-law approved by the Lieutenant Governor. The Trustees appointed a Bursar for the College. This officer was to serve as the Secretary to the Board.

Six years later, on April 30, 1900 an act¹⁹⁴ was passed in which Upper Canada College was made a body corporate under the management of a Board of Governors of seventeen members. The Board of Governors was not required to report annually to the Minister of Education but to report upon demand of the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

Under the Act¹⁹⁵ passed in 1853 two annual reports were required on Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School.

The first report to be printed was the Bursar's statement on the University of Toronto for the academic year 1876/77. This included a statement on Upper Canada College. The following year a separate statement was published by the Bursar on Upper Canada College. Statements were published annually in the Sessional Papers until 1890/91 except for the years 1882/83 and 1883/84. Between the years 1881/82 and 1890/91 nine reports, from the Principal's office, were printed as an appendix to the Report of the Minister of Education. In 1891/92 the report of the Principal and Bursar was printed in the Sessional Papers. However, only four reports were printed between 1891/92 and 1898/99.

Several bills and one act were issued as separate publications between 1884 and 1900. These have been arranged in chronological order.

A number of special reports respecting the College were published between 1868 and 1892. These have been arranged in chronological order.

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE

Under the terms of the British North America Act¹⁹⁶ the Lieutenant Governor was required to appoint as one of the executive officers a secretary and registrar for the Province.

Unlike most departments of government, no legislation respecting the general duties was passed. However, from time to time the Secretary served in a dual capacity as an executive officer. Through an order in council or by legislation he also was made responsible for certain branches, some of which were transferred from other departments and later were again transferred to still another department. Some branches were placed under the Secretary when formed, to be transferred later to another department. Still other branches were organized under another department to be transferred to the Secretary.

In his role of executive officer he served as the Registrar General from 1869¹⁹⁷ to 1888¹⁹⁸ when the Minister of Agriculture became the Registrar General. He resumed this office in 1896.¹⁹⁹ The Secretary also served as the Commissioner of Immigration from 1877, when this Department was transferred from Agriculture, to 1888 when the Department was once more transferred back to Agriculture.

¹⁹⁶ Imperial Act of 30 and 31 Vict., c. 3.

¹⁹⁷ Act of 32 Vict., c. 30.

¹⁹⁸ Act of 51 Vict., c. 8.

¹⁹⁹ Act of 59 Vict., c. 17.

Several branches for which the Secretary was responsible for a short period of time were: (1) Inspector of Insurance, transferred in 1889 from the Treasury Department and in 1895 transferred to the Department of Crown Lands; (2) Inspector of Registry Offices, transferred in 1893 from the Lieutenant Governor and in 1895 transferred to the Attorney General's Department; (3) Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent Children, established in 1893 under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Secretary, and in 1899 transferred to the Attorney General's Department; (4) Industrial schools, transferred in 1896 from the Education Department²⁰⁰ and in 1899 transferred to the Attorney General's Department; and (5) Inspector of Division Courts, from 1875 to 1878 when the Lieutenant Governor became responsible.

When the Office of the Inspector of Public Asylums, Hospitals, Common Gaols and Reformatories was established in 1868 the Inspector was required to report to the Lieutenant Governor, which he did for four years. When he presented his report for 1871/72, however, he addressed it to the Provincial Secretary, a policy which he continued throughout the period under study.

In 1876 the Licence Branch, which dealt with liquor licences, was established under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Secretary. From 1876 to 1900 this Branch oscillated between the Provincial Secretary and the Provincial Treasury. Since it was under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Secretary in 1899 it has been listed with this Office.

Information respecting municipal institutions, particularly statistical information was the responsibility of the Provincial Secretary from 1868 to 1885. On April 23, 1887²⁰¹ certain statistics were required to be submitted to the Bureau of Industries, which was under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Agriculture. However, other returns respecting municipal institutions continued to be presented to the Legislative Assembly by the Provincial Secretary. Thus municipal institutions have been considered in this study as the responsibility of this officer.

Information respecting railways, other than the Railway Fund which was the responsibility of the Treasurer, was also presented to the Legislative Assembly by the Provincial Secretary. Thus railways in this study also have been considered the responsibility of the Provincial Secretary.

When the Master of Titles was appointed in 1885, while he reported directly to the Lieutenant Governor, his annual reports were presented to the Legislative Assembly by the Provincial Secretary.

When an act²⁰² was passed on January 23, 1869 respecting the security to be given by civil servants the Secretary was responsible for the registration of these securities.

Since there was no legislation respecting the general duties of the office of Secretary there was no requirement for an annual report on these duties. However, from 1881 the Secretary and Registrar did present to the Lieutenant Governor for transmittal to the Legislative Assembly an annual report on the activities of this office.

The Legislative Assembly frequently requested information, in the form of a return, from the Lieutenant Governor. This information generally was presented to the Legislative Assembly, by command of the Lieutenant Governor, by the Secretary. If ²⁰⁰ Act of 59 Vict., c. 73.

²⁰¹ Act of 50 Vict., c. 29.

²⁰² Act of 32 Vict., c. 29.

such information was compiled by another Department of government and printed as a Sessional Paper that report or return has been listed with the publications of that Department. If the return or report was compiled from information held in the Secretary's Office it has been arranged in chronological order in this section under Special Publications.

INSPECTOR OF LIQUOR LICENSES

The British North America Act²⁰³ gave the provincial legislatures the exclusive right to pass legislation on the issuance of shop, saloon, tavern, auctioneer, and other licenses for the purpose of raising revenue for provincial, local, or municipal purposes.

Between 1868 and 1873 several acts were passed respecting tavern and shop licenses. Under these acts municipal inspectors were appointed for the observance and enforcement of the by-laws laid down by the municipality.

In an act²⁰⁴ passed on March 28, 1873 the Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint one or more provincial officers who would be responsible for enforcing the provisions of this Act. The following year a further act²⁰⁵ was passed to amend and consolidate all previous acts dealing with the sale of fermented and spirituous liquor. Under this Act under the direction of the Lieutenant Governor all licenses must be issued on stamped paper, written or printed; signed by the Treasurer of the Province; and renewed on the first day of March each year.

On February 10, 1876 further amendments to the law²⁰⁶ respecting the sale of fermented or spirituous liquors were passed. Under these amendments the powers and duties held by the commissioner of police and municipal councils were transferred to a board of licensed commissioners of three members appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. Each member of the board was appointed for one year but could be re-appointed. The municipal inspectors now were also appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

From 1876 to 1897 further acts were passed which dealt with the issuance of liquor licenses, referendum on the establishment of taverns, etc. No act contained any requirement that an annual report must be presented to either the Lieutenant Governor or the Legislative Assembly. However in 1874 the Provincial Treasurer issued two reports, one for 1873 and one for 1875. In 1876 the Provincial Secretary issued a report. The following year he called his report the second annual report. Each year thereafter an annual report was issued, sometimes under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Secretary; sometimes under that of the Provincial Treasurer.

Several consolidations of statutes respecting liquor licenses were published. These have been listed in chronological order. Between 1869 and 1894 the Legislative Assembly requested information from the Lieutenant Governor respecting liquor licenses. The returns which were printed have been arranged in chronological order.

MUNICIPAL INSTITUTIONS

Under the British North America Act²⁰⁷ the provincial legislatures were given the exclusive right to pass legislation respecting municipal institutions in the Province.

On March 4, 1868 an act²⁰⁸ was passed which amended certain sections of the Municipal Act of Upper Canada.²⁰⁹ In the Province of Canada Act the clerk of every county and the clerk of every city was required to prepare and transmit annually to the Provincial Secretary, before the first day of February, a statement on forty-three items which were named. The new act required statistical information on only forty items. The requirement that the Provincial Secretary should lay these statistical returns before the Legislature at the commencement of each session continued. Municipal statistical returns were presented to the Legislative Assembly annually from 1867 to 1885 except for the years 1869, 1870 and 1871. However only the returns for five of the years, namely 1868, 1872, 1877-1879 were printed. The returns for the other years were ordered by the Legislative Assembly "not to be printed". Abstracts of the returns were printed for the years 1880 to 1883 (incorrectly called 1884). When the abstract was presented for 1884 (1883) the Committee on Printing recommended "that the municipal statistics be obtained and printed once only at intervals of three years".²¹⁰

On April 23, 1887 when the Municipal Act²¹¹ was further amended the clerk of every municipality now was required annually, within one month after the final revision of the assessment roll, to make a return to the Secretary of the Bureau of Industries. These returns were to contain such statistics or other information which could be provided by the assessment rolls or other records held in the Provincial Secretary's Office. The returns also were to be submitted to the Secretary of the Bureau of Industries on forms provided by his office but which had been approved by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. Since the Bureau of Industries was under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Agriculture the information respecting the printing of these statistics will be found with the documents for that Department.

While the printing of municipal statistics was transferred to the Department of Agriculture in 1887, other returns respecting municipal institutions continued to be issued by the Provincial Secretary's Office.

A number of statutes dealing with municipal institutions were published. From time to time the Legislative Assembly requested returns respecting municipal matters. To facilitate the interpretation of the various statutes, manuals were published. The returns and manuals have been arranged under special publications in chronological order.

OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR OF PRISONS AND PUBLIC CHARITIES

Under the British North America Act²¹² the provincial legislatures were given the exclusive right to pass legislation for "the establishment, maintenance and management of public and reformatory prisons, hospitals, asylums, charities and eleemosynary institutions, other than marine hospitals".

On February 28, 1868 an act²¹³ was passed by which all laws passed by the late Province of Canada relating to the establishment, maintenance, and management of the above institutions, excluding the provincial penitentiary, were repealed. On March 4, 1868 a new act²¹⁴ known as "The Prison and Asylum Inspection Act, 1868" was passed. Under this Act the Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint an inspector of all public asylums, hospitals, common gaols and reformatories, excluding the provincial penitentiary.

The Inspector was required to: (1) visit and inspect every gaol, house of correction, reformatory, and prison, or place kept for the confinement of persons (other than the provincial penitentiary) at least twice a year, and make a separate and distinct report in writing to the Lieutenant Governor on the state of every place visited; (2) visit all asylums at least three times a year; (3) all hospitals at least twice a year and submit reports on these institutions; (4) frame by-laws for the peace, welfare, and good government of asylums, subject to approval of the Lieutenant Governor; and (5) submit an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor on or before October 1 on the state, condition, and management of all institutions under his jurisdiction with suggestions for improvement. The Inspector was to include the report of the wardens, chaplains, physicians on the reformatories, medical superintendents, and bursars of the lunatic asylums. He also was to include returns on the inmates, balance sheets, statements of debts, and inventories. The first annual report was issued for 1867/68.

The Inspector was empowered to examine any person holding office and inspect any books, or papers relating to any place of confinement. He was also empowered, subject to the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to alter, amend, cancel, or rescind, frame, and adopt rules and regulations for the government of the common gaols.

On February 15, 1871 an act²¹⁵ was passed to provide for the establishment and government of a Central Prison for Ontario. The Inspector of Public Asylums, Hospitals, Common Gaols and Reformatories was to exercise the same powers and perform the same duties for the Central Prison as for other reformatories.

On the same day an act²¹⁶ respecting asylums for the insane was passed. All asylums were to be known as "Asylum for the Insane" followed by the name of the place where the asylum was located. The Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint a medical superintendent for each asylum who in turn would present a report on the condition thereof to the Inspector in each visit. The Lieutenant Governor also was required to appoint a bursar who would report monthly on the state of the income and expenditure to the Superintendent and quarterly to the Inspector.

On March 29, 1873 an act²¹⁷ was passed whereby two institutions of a different type already established, were placed under the jurisdiction of the Inspector, namely, the "Ontario Institution for the Education and Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb", Belleville, established in 1870, and the "Ontario Institution for the Education and Instruction of the Blind", Brantford, established in 1872. The Inspector was to "have and perform the same powers and duties in respect to these institutions as had been conferred on him by "The Prison and Asylum Inspection Act, 1868". Under this Act the Inspector now was required to report to the Provincial Secretary rather than to the Lieutenant Governor.

On February 10, 1876 under an act²¹⁸ respecting administrative matters the Inspector was now to be known as "The Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities".

On March 11, 1879 an act²¹⁹ for the construction of the Andrew Mercer Ontario Reformatory for Females was passed. The Inspector became responsible for this institution with the same powers and duties with respect to it as he was required to exercise over the other institutions under his jurisdiction.

On February 1, 1883 a further act²²⁰ was passed whereby the Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint two persons each to be an Inspector of Public Asylums, Hospitals, Common Gaols and Reformatories. Through orders in council the Lieutenant Governor would designate which institutions requiring inspection would be assigned to each inspector. While no specific mention was made respecting the annual report a definite change took place. The report for 1882, published in 1883, continued to be named the Annual report of the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities but with an added title to each report: upon the Common Gaols, Prisons and Reformatories; on the Asylums for the Insane, and the Asylum for Idiots; upon the Hospitals; upon the Houses of Refuge, and Orphan and Magdalen Asylums aided by the Province; upon the Ontario Institution for the Education and Instruction of the Blind, Brantford; and, upon the Ontario Institution of the Deaf and Dumb, Belleville. The Institution for the Deaf and Dumb also published a semi-monthly paper under "the Minister of the government in charge" of the Institution.

One compilation of the statutes respecting asylums, prisons and public charities was published. Nearly every year between 1869 and 1898 one or more returns were requested and published by the Legislative Assembly, respecting individual institutions. These special reports have been arranged in chronological order.

OFFICE OF LAND TITLES

On March 30, 1885 an act²²¹ was passed to simplify titles and to facilitate the transfer of land in the city of Toronto and the county of York. The Lieutenant Governor was required to appoint by Commission a barrister of not less than ten years standing at the Bar of Ontario as Master of Titles. A land registry was to be established, the rules and regulations for which were laid down in a schedule appended to the Act.

The Master of Titles was permitted to advise and assist in making, rescinding, annulling or adding to the rules which could only be changed by the Lieutenant ²²¹ Act of 48 Vict., c. 22.

Governor in Council with the Judges of the Supreme Court and subject to the provisions laid down in the Act.

The Act did not require any report. However, the Master of Titles submitted an annual report to the Lieutenant Governor from 1885 to 1895 and to the "Administrator of the government of Ontario" for 1896. These reports were presented to the Legislative Assembly by the Provincial Secretary on command of the Lieutenant Governor and printed. Further reports were presented but not printed.

On April 23, 1887 an act²²² was passed whereby the Land Titles Act was extended to other towns and counties. The Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint a local master of titles for each area. When ten counties, cities, or towns had established a land titles office the Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint an inspector to be known as "The Inspector of Land Titles Offices". As new offices were established the Master of Titles reported upon them. No reports were published by the Inspector.

One consolidation of statutes was published.

PUBLIC SERVICE

On January 23, 1869 an act²²³ respecting the security to be given by officers of Ontario was passed. Under this Act every person appointed to any civil office, or employment, or commission in any public department of the government of Ontario, or the government of the late Province of Canada, office, or employment of public trust, or concerned with the collection, receipt, disbursement, or expenditure of any public money for, or under the government of Ontario, was required to give security with surety or sureties with such sums as the Lieutenant Governor approved. The Secretary and Registrar was required to register all bonds and securities, and maintain a separate alphabetical list of the names of the principals, and the names of the sureties mentioned in such bonds, or securities. The Secretary and Registrar also was required to prepare for the information of the Legislative Assembly, within fifteen days of the opening of every session, a detailed statement of all bonds or securities registered in his office, with any changes of entries since the period of his previous report to the Legislative Assembly. Statements were presented to the Legislative Assembly and assigned a Sessional Paper number for the years 1871 to 1884, 1886, 1891 to 1896. However, only eight of these statements were published.

²²² Act of 50 Vict., c. 15.

²²³ Act of 32 Vict., c. 29.

On March 7, 1878 an act²²⁴ was passed respecting the Public Service of Ontario. This Act classified into groups civil servants with their salaries, and annual increments; outlined procedures for appointments, examinations, and promotions, which had to be approved by the Lieutenant Governor; stated the oath of office; and listed the records which must be kept by the clerk of county courts, the registrar of surrogate courts and clerk of city division courts on the fees and emoluments received. The Lieutenant Governor in Council made the rules and regulations for carrying out the Act, and for classifying the offices and clerkships in the Public Service. The clerks of the several courts were required to present to the Lieutenant Governor on the fifteenth day of January a return under oath of all fees, charges and emoluments received up to December 31 of the previous year.

The only report to be published was one on the classification of officers, chief clerks, and clerks, published in 1881.

Between 1871 and 1894 the Legislative Assembly requested a number of returns on the names of members of the Legislative Assembly, and persons appointed in the government, giving date, type of appointment and emoluments. The returns which were published as Sessional Papers have been arranged in chronological order.

RAILWAYS

The number of railway companies was growing at such a rate between 1867 and 1900 that the Legislative Assembly appointed a Select Standing Committee on Railways for each session of the Legislature to investigate railway activities. Periodically, during each session the Committee presented a report. None of these reports was published separate from what was printed in the Journals.

On February 15, 1871 an act²²⁵ was passed whereby a Railway Fund of one million, five hundred thousand dollars was established. The Lieutenant Governor in Council was empowered to authorize payment to an incorporated railway company by means of an order in council when the Commissioner of Agriculture and Public Works had reported that the work had been completed. These reports also were not published.

By a further act²²⁶ passed on March 2, 1872 all orders in council dealing with railways must be laid before the Legislative Assembly for ratification, or rejection. They must also be published in the Ontario gazette.

Acts continued to be passed nearly every year respecting railways. No act required any report. However, between 1872 and 1878 reports were requested by the Legislative Assembly, sometimes annually, sometimes only once, on approximately the fifty railway companies which were operating under provincial legislation. These reports were published. They have been listed in alphabetical order under the name of the company. Since these reports were only prepared upon a direct request for information by the Legislative Assembly and the citation varies somewhat for each report of any given company, no attempt has been made to consolidate these reports into a single citation as was done with annual departmental reports required through legislation. These reports were presented to the Legislative Assembly.

On May 25, 1883 the Parliament of Canada passed an act²²⁷ whereby it acquired the control of over one half of the railways which had been subject to provincial legislation.²²⁸

Between 1873 and 1899 the Legislative Assembly requested various reports respecting railways, over one half of which concerned the Railway Fund, which was administered by the Treasury Department. The other reports generally were submitted to the Legislative Assembly by the Provincial Secretary. Regardless of which Department presented the information to the Legislative Assembly these reports have been arranged in chronological order in this section.

A number of statutes were published. These also have been arranged in chronological order.

REGISTRAR GENERAL

On January 23, 1869 an "Act²²⁹ to provide for the registration of births, marriages and deaths" was passed, to come into force July 1, 1869. The Provincial Secretary, who was named the Registrar General, was required on or before the first day of June, annually, to collate, publish and distribute for the use of Parliament (i.e. Legislature), "a full report of the births, marriages and deaths of the preceding year, giving such details as the Lieutenant Governor in Council may think necessary".

On March 23, 1888 the functions, duties and powers of the Registrar General were transferred from the Provincial Secretary to the Minister of Agriculture.²³⁰

In 1891 the Treasurer assumed the office of Registrar General, a position which he held until 1895. On April 7, 1896 an act²³¹ to revise and consolidate the acts respecting the registration of births, marriages and deaths was passed. Under this Act the Registrar General was to be that member of the Executive Council whose department was charged with the administration of the Act. While the Act did not specify which executive officer would be the Registrar General the Provincial Secretary once more became the Registrar General.

The first annual report covered only the period July 1 to December, 1869. Thereafter a report was published annually except for the year 1875. One interim report was published for the period January to June 1876.

²³¹ Act of 59 Vict., c. 17.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT

Under the terms of the British North America Act²³² the Lieutenant Governor was required to appoint as one of the executive officers a Treasurer for the Province. The Act did not list any duties other than to state that all the rights, powers, duties, functions, or authorities vested in the Minister of Finance of the Province of Canada by any law, statute, or ordinance of Upper Canada, or the Province of Canada would be vested in the Treasurer of Ontario. The duties and powers could be changed by legislation passed by the Legislature of Ontario.²³³

No legislation was passed by the Legislature of Ontario delineating the powers, duties, or rights of the Treasurer. However, several acts were passed which changed or added to the responsibilities of the Treasurer. Some branches established as part of the Treasury Department were later transferred to another department. Other branches were for a time the responsibility of the Treasurer as an executive officer. These were transferred from another department to his and later transferred to still another department. A third category consisted of those branches which were established and remained within the Treasury Department. In the first category was the Act respecting insurance companies, passed on February 10, 1876²³⁴, which was to be administered by the Treasurer. In 1889 insurance was transferred to the Provincial Secretary. In the capacity of an executive officer the Treasurer was also the Registrar General from 1891 to 1896. This executive office was transferred in 1891 from the Minister of Agriculture and in 1896 was transferred to the Provincial Secretary.

While a provincial auditor had been appointed in 1877 to audit the Public Accounts this position was only established through legislation on March 25, 1886 when an act²³⁵ was passed as the result of continuing dissatisfaction over the auditing of the accounts.

The Lieutenant Governor was required to appoint a provincial auditor who was to "examine, check, and audit all accounts of receipts, and expenditure of public moneys, whether appertaining to the Province, or received or expended by the Province on account of, or in trust for any other party or parties."

The Provincial Auditor was required to prepare and deliver annually to the Treasurer the Public Accounts which were to be laid before the Legislature. The accounts were to cover the period January 1 to December 31. Estimates were also to be submitted to the Legislature. No money could be spent after December 31 unless the expenses had been incurred on or prior to that date. All balances of appropriations not spent by January 20 of the following year simply lapsed. If the Treasurer did not present the annual report of the Provincial Auditor to the Legislative Assembly, the Auditor was empowered to present the report.

²³³ ibid. s. 135.

²³⁴ Act of 39 Vict., c. 23.

²³⁵ Act of 49 Vict., c. 4.

The Lieutenant Governor also was empowered to appoint a Treasury Board of three members from among the Executive Council, who were to make decisions on all matters referred to it. They could alter the dates of returns of financial matters, determine what account should be charged should difference of opinion arise between the Department concerned and the Provincial Auditor, and approve emergency appropriations subject to recommendations of the Provincial Auditor.

The Treasurer presented the Public Accounts to the Legislative Assembly annually from 1868. He also prepared them from 1868 to 1876. Estimates were also submitted from 1868 by the Treasurer. Both the Public Accounts and Estimates were printed.

When moving the House into Committee of Supply the Treasurer delivered a speech to the Legislative Assembly. These speeches, known as the "budget speeches," were published except for the years 1868 and 1871 when only typewritten copies, made from the reports published in the Globe form the record. For these speeches both a serial citation and an individual citation for each speech has been listed.

Approximately every year the Treasurer was requested by the Legislative Assembly to make one or more returns on financial matters respecting various aspects of government. These returns have been arranged in chronological order.

MUNICIPAL LOAN FUND

On November 10, 1852 an act²³⁶ was passed to establish the Upper Canada Municipal Loan Fund. This Act allowed for unlimited borrowing by the municipalities in order for them to effect public improvements. Two years later a further act²³⁷ was passed on December 18, 1854 limiting the Fund to £1,500,000 sterling, and limiting the amount a municipality could borrow to twenty per cent on the aggregate valuation of the property of the municipality according to the last assessment roll. Four and a half years later on May 4, 1859 a further act²³⁸ was passed whereby no further loans could be made to the municipalities except under by-laws which had been sanctioned prior to May 4 by the Governor in Council.²³⁹

The members of the Legislative Assembly concerned about both the amount of the loan and the interest required requested two returns to be presented to them.

On March 29, 1873 an act²⁴⁰ respecting the Municipal Loan Fund debts was passed. The Act did not require any report. However, a report which contained the acts of 1859 and 1873 as well as the final settlement of indebtedness was issued by the Treasury Department. Three reports also were issued for the years 1874 to 1876, respecting the surplus distribution schedules.

Several special returns were published. These have been arranged in chronological order.

CHAPTER V

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

Under the British North America Act¹ the judges of the superior, district, and county courts were appointed by the Governor General. Until the laws regarding property and civil rights were made uniform in Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, the judges were to be appointed from the bars of the respective provinces. The salaries, allowances, and pensions of the judges were not to be paid by the provincial legislatures but by the Parliament of Canada.

On March 29, 1873 an act² was passed for the better administration of justice in the courts of Ontario. Under this Act the judges of the superior courts of common law were granted the power to make general rules, or orders for carrying out the Act. A minimum of four judges, two of whom were to be chief justices, were required to pass any rule or order. These rules were published. The Act did not require any report on the administration of justice.

On March 4, 1881 an act³, to take effect on August 22, was passed to consolidate the superior courts, establish a uniform system of pleading and practice, and make further provision for the due administration of justice.

Under this Act, cited as "The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881" there was to be one Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario consisting of two permanent divisions: "The High Court of Justice for Ontario," and "The Court of Appeal for Ontario." The High Court of Justice was in turn made up of three divisions: Queen's Bench Division, Chancery Division, and Common Pleas Division. The Rules of Court were published in a schedule appended to the Act. Additional Rules of Court could be passed by a minimum of five members selected from among the Chief Justice of Ontario, Justices of Appeal, Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, the Chancellor, and the Chief Justice of Common Pleas. The Rules for the several courts were published. These have been arranged in chronological order. In addition to the Rules a number of publications which dealt with forms and precedents were compiled by individuals. These have been arranged in alphabetical order in the same section entitled Court Rules, etc. under the name of the compiler. A number of statutes were published with annotations. These have been arranged in chronological order under Laws, statutes, etc.

The Lieutenant Governor was required to appoint one of the officers of the High Court or other competent person to inspect the offices of sheriffs, local masters, deputy registrars, deputy clerks of the crown, local registrars of the High Court, registrars of the Surrogate Court, clerk of the peace, county crown attorneys, and clerks of the county courts. The Inspector was required to make a personal inspection of all the above offices, books, and court papers, ascertain that the duties of these officers were efficiently performed, see that proper costs and charges only were exacted, ascertain that uniform practice prevailed, and report all matters to the Lieutenant Governor.

Prior to the passing of the above Act an Inspector of Division Courts had been appointed and had presented an annual report from 1875 to 1878 to the Provincial Secretary. No report was located for 1879. From 1880 the reports, addressed to the Lieutenant Governor, were issued from the Office of the Inspector of Division Courts.

³ Act of 44 Vict., c. 5.

In addition to the above reports the Legislative Assembly from time to time requested various returns respecting the administration of justice. Regardless of which department of government supplied the information the returns have been arranged in this section in chronological order.

CHAPTER VI

MISCELLANEOUS

This chapter lists documents which might be said to be peripheral to the official documents listed in the other chapters. A number of the documents contain speeches delivered by the executive officers and other members of the Legislative Assembly, but delivered outside of the Legislative Assembly. Other documents provide general election information. Still others promote tourism and resort areas in the "northern lakes."

A number of these documents were printed by the official publishers to the Legislature. The documents in this chapter have been arranged first in alphabetical order by author, then chronologically for each author.
